FROM LONDON.

THE CAPITULATION OF METZ—173,000 PRISONERS—REJOICING IN BERLIN.

LONDON, October 28.—The capitulation of Metz was not signed until Thursday night. The city will be occupied by the Germans tomorrow. The whole number of prisoners is now represented at one hundred and seventy-three thousand, including three Marshals and six thousand officers. One hundred guns were fired in Berlin yesterday in honor of the event.

A dispatch to the London Times, from Berlin, intimates that the French had rejected the German terms of armistice, but thinks the fall of Metz will lead them to reconsider their determination.

[Cable Special to the New York World.]

THE METZ CAPITULATION—ARMISTICE NEGOTIATIONS.

LONDON, October 28.—The news of the surrender of Metz, with the army of Marshal Bazaine, numbering 83,000 combatants of all arms, and of between 15,000 and 20,000 disabled troops, is confirmed to-day. In government circles, and among Imperialists it is regarded favorable to the negotiations now going on at Versailles for an armistice. These negotiations, on their original basis, involve no reference whatever to Metz, the army of Marshal Bazaine having been considered by both parties as out of the political question. I have its points on the best authority as follows:

First—That the principle of the status quo ante bellum is to govern all arrangements looking to the possible resumption of arms after the armistice.

Second—That both belligerents are to be allowed to hold undisturbed their actual possessions at the time of the signing of stipulations.

Third—That the city of Paris is to be allowed to receive daily one day's supply of provisions.

Fourth—All latitude is to be given throughout the country to proceed with the election of members to the Constituent Assembly.

It is now reported that Austria has renewed her activity in support of the English negotiations also, and that she is warmly backed by the Italian Government.

SAFE CONDUCT FOR THIERS.

Intelligence is just received by the Foreign Office here that the German authorities at Versailles had consented, on a formal demand to that effect, couched in diplomatic but decided language of the Governments of Great Britain and Russia, to grant M. Thiers safe conduct from Tours through the German lines into Paris. It is expected that the interview between Thiers and Gen. Trochu will decide the fate of negotiations for armistice.

PREPARING TO LEAVE.

Lord Lyons, the British Minister to France, is preparing to leave Tours. He has engaged the first floor of the Hotel de la Paix, in Bordeaux.

COST OF THE WAR.

Le Pays estimates the expenses of the war, beginning with the cost of armament since 1868, at four hundred and sixty million pounds. [N. Y. Herald Cable.]

THE FALL OF METZ TO BE FOLLOWED BY PEACE.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Advices from Bouillon, 17th, state that the capitulation of Bazaine, with the army at Metz, is in conformity with an understanding arrived at with the King of Prussia, and contemplates a speedy peace.

NEWS FROM PARIS.

Heavy rifle firing was heard to-day near Paris, the sound coming from the defences between Lavillette and Montmartre.

ADVANCE ON LYONS.

The Germans, who occupied Versoul in considerable force, have left for Graysen Sayone. This movement down the valley of the Saone is believed to be the first step in the advance on Lyons.

RESULT OF THE INQUIRY.

The Court of Inquiry on the blowing up of the citadel of Laon acquits the French commandant of all responsibility.

LETTER FROM GARIBALDI.

A letter from Garibaldi is published, in which he says he at first sympathized with Germany, when she sought the overthrow of Napoleon, and he now sympathized with France, because she has made herself a Republic.

AN INSULT PUNISHED.

A soldier at Spandau grossly insulted Lord Loftus, British Minister to Prussia, and was severely punished.

VARIOUS REPORTS.

Dispatches from Tours report that General Michael is appointed to succeed Cambrel in command of the Eastern Department.

It is rumored that a German corps has been defeated and routed between Beaugency and Mont Heliard.

The people of Amiens display intense ardor in the defense of the city.

The French Government has by a decree ordered trial by jury in all cases.

GENERAL WAR NOTES.

LONDON, Oct. 28.—A correspondent of the Times telegraphs the following from Versailles, under date of 25th: It will be a few days yet before the Germans bombard Paris.

In the action of the 21st sixty-five battalions took part, supported by twelve batteries.

Bazaine was recently informed he could only have the terms which were accorded to McMahon.

Over two thousand sick and wounded French and Germans are in and around Versailles.

There was a sharp skirmish between reconnoitering parties on the left bank of the Loire, near Orleans, yesterday. Both parties retired.

TO BOTH, OR NEITHER.

LONDON, October 28.—The Times doubts if England should not, like America, abandon scrupulous neutrality and afford supplies to both belligerents.

THEIR MUSIC HAS NO CHARMS.

LONDON, October 28.—At Orleans Prussian bands play every evening, but the inhabitants remain closely housed. The shops are all closed and the women appear in mourning.

FROM FRANCE.

OPERATIONS ON THE LOIRE—NOTHING OFFICIAL FROM PARIS.

TOURS, October 28.—The Government continues to withhold news of operations on the Loire. All known is that vast bodies of troops have been maneuvering for some days, and that great battles are imminent near Le Mans and Orleans.

Nothing official has been received from Paris to-day, but it is privately reported that several successful sorties were recently made.

The official report of the capitulation of Schlestadt has been received by the Minister of the Interior.

Advices from Besancon show that successful resistance has been offered to the German invaders of the eastern provinces.

Thiers started for Paris to-day.

A PRUSSIAN DEFEAT.

TOURS, October 28.—The following official dispatch is just made public:

Bourg, October 28.—A telegram from Basle announces the Prussians have suffered defeat between Mont Siliard and Besancon. They fled in disorder taking with them fifty-three wagons filled with wounded, and leaving 1,200 killed on the field. Three hundred of the fugitives crossed the frontier into Swiss Territory. They were disarmed and directed to proceed to Posentry.

NEWS SUMMARY.

TOURS, October 28—Evening.—Advices from Lille represent that Gen. Bourbaki has made a careful inspection of all the strongholds in the north, and was engaged in reviewing troops and giving orders for defence.

Gen. Alexandre Ernest is appointed to a command in the east, in place of Cambriel, removed.

The Government here considers Bourbaki's march to the assistance of Amiens saved that city from attack and bombardment.

There is no official intelligence from Paris or the army of the Loire known to have been received here to-day.

Col. Wickerstein, military attache of the Russian Embassy, left Tours to-day for Versailles, having received safe conduct from the Prussian headquarters. He has just arrived here from London and will go from Versailles to Paris.

Minister Gambetta has issued a decree establishing in each department a centre of observation, so that troops may no longer be liable to surprise by the enemy. Proper parties will be held responsible, under heavy penalties, for constantly reporting movements of the invaders.

A Protestant pastor of Geneva, a native of the United States, who has accompanied the ambulance trains since the beginning of the war, is now in Tours. He gives a harrowing recital of the brutal conduct of the Prussian soldiers towards defenceless country people. He says he has seen them wantonly destroy farming implements, looms and food, take away the men and compel them to work as laborers, leaving the women, children and infirm to starve. He intends to address, through the press, a letter to the kind people of Germany, giving details of these outrageous acts.

FROM GERMANY.

GETTING LIBERAL.

ENFORCING ELECTION LAW IN NEW YORK.

All the members of the Cabinet attended the meeting to-day, which continued three hours. The time was principally occupied in considering questions connected with the election law, and particularly as to New York, the general sentiment being that it should be strictly enforced, without detriment to the rights of any voters, but in the interest of all. Arrangements are now complete, so far as the military force is concerned, and orders to their commanders will soon be issued, enjoining upon them great caution so as to give no cause for a breach of peace, but to be in readiness to render such aid as may be necessary in the proper enforcement of the law.

NEW NATIONAL BANKS.

Acting Comptroller Knox to-day authorized the following banks to commence business: National Bank of Pulaski, Tennessee, capital $100,000; Iowa National Bank of Ottumwa, Iowa, capital $100,000.

The application of the First National Gold Bank of San Francisco, capital $100,000, has been approved. An application has also been received from Stockton, California, for a National Gold Bank, capital $100,000.

UNTRUE STATEMENT.

The statement recently published that five hundred dollars was sent to the United States Treasury a few days ago for the conscience fund from Louisville, Ky., turns out untrue. A forged check for that amount, purporting to have been sent through the Merchants Union Express, was received, but the agent of that company never received the package referred to in the receipt, and pronounces his signature to the receipt spurious.

THE ENGLISH MISSION.

Nothing is yet positively known about the new appointment of Minister to England. It is not probable any announcement will be officially made until the gentleman to whom the mission will be offered shall have signified his acceptance of it.

AGENT APPOINTED.

The President has appointed J. B. Jones, of Indian Territory, Indian Agent for Cherokee agency.

POLITICAL.

West Virginia Election—Partial Returns—Republicans Lose Two Congressmen.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

WHEELING, Oct. 27.—Partial returns from about ten counties show large Democratic gains. Davis, Democrat, in First Congressional District, is undoubtedly elected over Goff, Republican.

Ohio county increases her Democratic majority for Governor to 465, although on local issues the Republicans elect a Sheriff and Clerk of Court.

The Democrats have gained largely in members of the House of Delegates, sufficient, they claim, to control the next Legislature.

Nothing has been received from the Kanawha region up to this hour. It will be impossible to determine the result in the State until further returns are received, although it is conceded by Republicans that their majority in 1868 has been greatly reduced. RIVER OBSTRUCTION.

Important Meeting at Cincinnati—Resolve to Enjoin the Cincinnati and Newport Bridge Company.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

CINCINNATI, October 28.—An important meeting in opposition to the Newport and Cincinnati bridge, as now constructing, was held to-day by the joint Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, Board of Trade and City Government of Cincinnati, with representatives of the city of Pittsburgh, Coal Exchange and river interests of that city. There was a general interchange of opinion in regard to the course to be pursued.

A dispatch was read from the Pittsburgh Committee at Philadelphia, which stated they had an interview with Col. Scott, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and that the latter thought no difficulty would be met in raising the bridge twenty feet, if the funds could be secured; that estimates of the expense would be made, and that he proposed Cincinnati should take enough stock to do the work. To this the Committee replied that the proposition was impracticable and unsatisfactory.

A resolution was unanimously adopted, declaring it expedient to immediately enjoin the bridge company from further work on the structure, and requesting the respective constituencies to grant moral and pecuniary aid for the legal prosecution.

The Methodist Episcopal Book Concern.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

CINCINNATI, October 28.—The Book Concern Committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church, appointed by the last General Conference, has been in session here since last Wednesday, and will probably not conclude their business before Tuesday next. Though the business of the committee is generally not entirely public, it is known that the examination of the affairs of the Western Book Concern here and in Chicago has shown them in a very satisfactory condition. The case of the Rev. Dr. Lanahan, Assistant Agent in New York, charged with official misconduct, malfeasance, neglect of official duty, insubordination to his superiors, want of business qualifications and other things, is understood to be under consideration, and that a conclusion will be reached at the meeting of the committee. The report that the old trouble of the New York Concern, involving Dr. Chillon and Jas. F. Porter, which was settled so far as the committee was concerned by exonerating the Concern, was to be reopened, is without foundation.

Cyclone in Cuba—Scandal by Cable—Theological Chair Filled—Review of the National Guard—Railroad War Renewed—The Illegal Registration Question—The Shenandoah Safe at Lisbon.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

NEW YORK, October 28, 1870.

CYCLONE IN CUBA.

Information has been received that a cyclone, almost equal in violence to that which swept over the eastern portion of Cuba on the 7th and 8th, devastated the western portion of the island on the 19th and 20th. Towns and villages were leveled with the ground, crops destroyed and immense damage done to property, and reports of the loss of life and shipping are coming in by telegraph. Communication and travel with the West is yet suspended.

SCANDAL BY CABLE.

A cable dispatch says that among the extraordinary and singular documents which were unearthed at the Tuileries, with the general correspondence and private letters of Napoleon, was one showing the fortune of the Emperor's mistress. This paper presents, in the form of a legal document, the marriage settlement of Elizabeth Ann Harriet, Countess of Beauregard of France, of Chateau Beauregard, near Versailles, better known as Miss or Mistress Howard. The deed was made out on the occasion of the union, by marriage, of this lady with Clarence Trevellyn, in the month of May, in the year 1845. Two schedules which are attached to the papers make known that the Countess possessed £117,000 sterling in England, and other French securities, including the sum of $90,000 in Pennsylvania United States Railway debentures, $74,000 in St. Louis and Cincinnati bonds, besides another and additional sum of £59,000 sterling, which is described as "other stocks, funds and securities," and distinguished as the settled fund. She had besides divers other investments, shares and securities, with jewels and other personal estate and landed property in France. During the later years of her life, her fortune exceeded in value the united wealth of Madame De Pompadour and the Countess Dubarri.

RAILROAD WAR—HOSTILITIES RENEWED.

A renewal of the war between Vanderbilt and the Erie road seems impending. The new Erie branch to the Suspension bridge was to have been opened next month, but Vanderbilt, by the construction of a new track at the point where the Erie branch crosses the Central, has blockaded the Erie rails near the Suspension bridge. Considerable excitement has been occasioned thereby.

CHAIR OF THEOLOGY.

The Board of Trustees of the General Theological Seminary met to-day to fill the chair of Systematic Divinity, just created. There was quite a large number of candidates. The balloting lasted from two till eleven P. M. The contest chiefly lay between Dr. P. K. Cady, of Poughkeepsie and Rev. J. H. Egar, of Pittsburgh. Finally the former was elected on the fifteenth ballot.

A CASE DECIDED.

Judge Tappan, of Kings county supreme court, to-day decided in a case involving one hundred and twenty thousand dollars, that a marriage was perfectly legal if the parties promised to live together as husband and wife, and a child born before the marriage ceremony is performed is legal.

TROT AT PROSPECT PARK.

The trot at Prospect Park course to-day, to wagons, between American Girl and George Wilkes, for a purse of $1,000, was won easily by the former in three straight heats. Time 2:29¾, 2:30¾, 2:30.

GERMANY DEMOCRACY.

A large German Democratic mass meeting was held to-night. The speeches were all German, except that of Mayor Hall, who in his address implored his hearers to be calm and peaceful on election day.

ITALIAN CELEBRATION.

The Italian residents of this city this evening celebrated the liberation of Rome from the sway of the Pope by a grand concert, public meeting and ball.

The young Democracy have repudiated their nomination of Fernando Wood and are now supporting Gen. Hillyer.

DEATH ON THE RAIL.

Fearful Railroad Casualty—Two Persons Killed.

[By Telegraph to the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

RICHMOND, October 28.—A serious accident occurred on the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad yesterday, close to the chasm into which a car was precipitated in August last, when so many lives were lost. The western bound freight train had just crossed Jerry's Run and was slowly making the last ascent of the eastern acclivity of the Alleghenies, when the rear portion of the train, including the accommodation passenger car, broke loose and rushed back with such fearful velocity as to cause the trestle work over the Run to give way. The cars were hurled down an embankment of eighty feet, smashing them to atoms and instantly killing two men and severely wounding two others. The killed are a Mr. Gay and a negro named Woodson; the wounded, Mr. Shepard and Mr. Heppard, all of this State. It will take several days to repair the broken trestle work.

THEY have a Justice of the Peace in Decatur county, Iowa, who is fortunate in the possession of a wife who serves processes, summons juries, subpoenas witnesses, and does the general duty of a constable, and who last summer, with the help of a self-raking machine, got in all her husband's grain.

CAPT. JAMES SMITH, of Vinalhaven, Me., of schooner Carrie Smith, took in two nets one night last week sixteen hogsheads of herring, equal to seventy-five barrels. At Portland these are worth $5 per barrel, which would give for the night's catch $375. Quite a number of the shore fisherman have taken thirty barrels a night.

A GENTLEMAN devoted to statistics has carefully footed up the German losses during the war—taking the French reports as his basis—and finds the total to be a fraction over two millions and a half. He thinks the Germans must have vastly underestimated the strength of their own armies at the start, or that there must have been several rather important mistakes in the reports made by the French.

AN affectionate mother, Ellen Piles by name, was brought lately before a London court, charged with ill-treatment of her son, a child two years of age. A gentleman said he saw the woman deliberately take up the child and pitch it on to the pavement. Its head narrowly escaped coming in contact with a brick wall. Before the magistrates Mrs. Piles asserted her right to do what she pleased with her own child.

MARY E. FIELD, a Lanesboro (Mass.) lass of eighteen, has become quite noted, locally, for the facility and naturalness with which she produces drawings of animals. There were several of these drawings on exhibition at the late fair in that town. It seems to be the development of a natural taste and passion, as the girl has never been taught in that branch of education, and possibly she may prove a Rosa Bonheur in embryo.

HERE is a chance for some of our American dentists. The Council of the Odontological Society of London has offered for competition a gold medal, valued at twenty guineas, for the best essay on the osteological structure of the human teeth. The essay must be written in English, under a motto, and sent with sealed envelope superscribed with the same motto, containing the authors name and address, to the President of the Society, 32 Soho Square, London, by the 31st of December, 1871.

GENERAL HASBROUCK DAVIS, of Chicago, who was lost in the Cambria, was a son of Governor and Senator "Honest" John Davis. He was born in Worcester, Massachusetts, in 1827, graduated at Williams College in 1845, was a Unitarian clergyman for several years, and in 1854 went to Chicago and practiced law. He was a prominent and brave cavalry officer in the late war; was an editor after the war, and also city attorney of Chicago. He was a man of high scholarship and fine character.

IN COMMON with nearly all others who have examined Marshal Gregory's report of the population of Philadelphia for 1870, we have been surprised by the figures. A single statement, about which there can be no doubt, will show how far short of the real facts the census of 1870 fails. In the ten years from 1860 to 1870, there have been erected in that city 27,709 additional dwelling houses. Now to say that a city which has added nearly twenty-eight thousand to its aggregate of dwellings, has added but a little over ninety thousand to its population in the same time, is a patent absurdity. The new dwellings erected in that city in the last decade call for an increase in its population of not less than one hundred and seventy thousand people.

THE GREAT AMERICAN DESERT.

Irrigating the Prairies.

The problem of making "the Great American Desert" of the old school books "bloom and blossom as the rose," seems to depend for its solution upon time and water alone. That it is a "Sahara" has long since been found to be false, and now facts are accumulating rapidly in favor of the theory that vegetation may make many beautiful oases in this region and even ultimately increase the rain fall over the entire district, making it tillable. A letter from the Post Surgeon at Fort Wallace, in the extreme western part of Kansas, and in the central region of the great desert, relates an experience, suggesting that the lands along the Smoky River Valley can be redeemed. At this post a dam, at a trifling expense, has been thrown across the Smoky for the purpose of affording a pure supply of fresh water to the garrison. A conduit, two and a half feet deep by three feet wide, was run from the dam along the left bank of the river for about one-fourth of a mile in distance, reaching a broad, rich, level plateau of bottom land, included in a bend of the rivers and comprising about six hundred acres.

About four acres of this was ploughed up and inclosed this last spring, the aqueduct running through the centre. A number of gates, placed at regular intervals by unclosing and shutting, raised and lowered the water, which was thus made to flow through the side ditches over the garden at each side at will. Everything in the substantial vegetable line, with the exception of celery, was planted and grew, and perfected with extraordinary rapidity and excellence. After the first year's expense of constructing a dam and running a conduct, which would be slight ever so narrow a stream, there would be none worth mentioning beyond that attending agricultural labor anywhere; and I am unhesitating in my belief that over the thousand acres of bottom land along the "Smoky," wherever the stream flows, farm products, by the proper efforts, can be successfully and bountifully cultivated. Moreover, the rain fall is annually, surely and steadily increasing. Year before last the "fall" was registered at this post at nine inches. Last year it attained seventeen inches. This year it is nearly as great as last, one storm yielding three inches, equivalent in round numbers to nineteen hundred barrels to the acre, and would be a neat little shower for any country.

MR. BALDWIN, of Cresco, and Mr. and Mrs. James C. Smith, of Allamakee county, Iowa, were thrown from a buggy a short time since. Mr. Baldwin was instantly killed, Mrs. Smith so severely injured that her recovery is doubtful, and Mr. Smith hurt severely but not dangerously.

CHARLES BANQUIS, of Galesburg, was found guilty by the Knox county, Illinois, Circuit of committing a rape on a little girl only nine years old, some time during last August. He was sentenced to twenty-one years' imprisonment, with hard labor, in the Penitentiary. The prisoner is twenty-one years of age.

AH QUONG was locked up in the Marysville, California, jail for burglary a few nights ago. Next morning he was missing. He had sawed of his grated cell door with an old razor, picked a hole through a brick wall, and with a rope ladder made of strips of blanket scaled the outer wall. "The heathen Chinee is peculiar."

THE Marquette Express says that the Duck Brigade, from Portage, lately operating near Montelle, give up that the ducks are too many for them. While they have killed, perhaps, hundreds and wounded many more, there is not a duck less about the headquarters of Lake Puckaway. The ducks maintain their position, and claim a victory.

ON Wednesday night of last week, a tool car caught fire at the depot, at Elkhart, Indiana, and a young man rushing in to save his effects, was burned to death. The door of the car had a spring bolt, and immediately after he went in it closed and locked itself. There was help present, but, before the door could be opened, the young man was dead.

SOME scapegraces in Dubuque, Sunday evening, hung a dead rat over the limb of a tree, in such a manner that they could raise or lower it at will. When people came along from church, the rat was lowered to their faces. One chap left two fair attendants and bounded away with a shriek, leaving one fair young lady to faint, and the other yelling "murder!"

A YOUNG man, named E. T. Mather, who rowed a small boat from Chicago to Marquette, in July and August, started on his return early in the latter month, but since the 17th of August had not been heard from until a day or two ago, when his father received a dispatch announcing that his body had been found about twenty miles east of Marquette, upon the lake shore.

THE Alexandria, Minnesota, Post says: "A man living not one hundred miles from Alexandria was called upon a few nights ago to lend his horse to go for a doctor, the wife of a neighbor being very ill. It was probably a matter of life or death. The owner of the horse replied: 'My horse cost me $150, and may be hurt or killed in the night. If the woman dies she didn't cost anything. The horse can't go.'"

THE Republican candidates for Congress in the Thirty-first district of New York, Walter L. Sessions and N. M. Allen, have had a consultation with their friends, have settled their dispute, and a dispatch comes from Dunkirk to the effect that Mr. Allen withdraws from the contest and Mr. Sessions remains the candidate. No doubt now remains of the result of the election, as that is one of the strongest Republican districts in the state.

COLORADO has built 295 miles of railroad in the last nine months. When it is remembered that the Territory has a population of but 55,000, and is almost separated from civilization by a stretch of 600 miles of barren plains, the importance of this work becomes obvious. Other enterprises are projected, which, when finished, will sum up about 269 miles, not counting various schemes for building to Salt Lake or west of the mountains—making 564 miles of railroad which the people hope to have completed by the close of 1871.

FIVE brothers named Vibsky, living in Euclid township, Cuyahoga county, Ohio, went into the woods last Sunday to hunt or play. After a time two of them returned, and subsequently another, a boy of seven years, being tired, left for home. Still later the other two brothers started back, and while on their way found the seven-year-old boy lying unconscious and bleeding from a bullet wound in the head. He was taken home and died in a few hours. The two brothers who found him reported that as they came up to where he lay, they saw an unknown man running away from him; but as the woods were full of hunters at that time it is probable that a stray bullet struck him and caused his death.

THE La Crosse Democrat says: "Captain Moulton has just returned from Milwaukee, where he has been in consultation with the officers of the Milwaukee & St. Paul road, and we understand that a mutual arrangement has been entered into between that road and the Southern Minnesota Railroad, whereby the latter road is to extend its track from Grand Crossing to Barron's Island; the Milwaukee and St. Paul road is also to extend its track to the head of Barron's Island, and thence down to meet the Southern Minnesota Railroad track, joining on the Island. By this means passengers from Chicago to St. Paul and intermediate points will be transported without change of cars, while all through freight can be shipped without breaking bulk direct through. In the summer this route, for two miles between Grand Crossing and our depot, will be available by having transfer tracks on the boat, which will run in connection with the track just across the channel, for freight, &c., while passengers can go by the steam ferry."

A CONCERT has been given in Brighton, England, in aid of the "Red Cross" fund. Adelina Patti has also given a concert at Brighton.

FLOTOW'S new opera, L'Ombre, has been enthusiastically received wherever produced in Europe. It will be a welcome addition to the repertoires of American impressarii, if for no other reason, because it requires no chorus.

A NEW opera by B. Scholz, called "Morgiana," is creating a great sensation in Munich, and drawing fine audiences. Musical critics pronounce it a master piece, and say that it will place the author in the front ranks of composers.

AT Chicago, on Thursday evening, a new organ, containing sixty-three stops, nearly four thousand pipes and three manuals, was opened in the Jesuit Church, corner of Twelfth and May streets. This organ is claimed to be the third in volume in the country.

AT the Nilsson concert in New York, on Tuesday night, Marie Krebs, daughter of the Hof-Kappell-Meister of Dresden, played upon the piano, and was quite enthusiastically received. Miss Krebs, at the age of thirteen, was looked upon as a musical star, and her performances then were wonderful.

BERTHA JOHANNSEN, the well-known prima donna, has taken up her residence in Boston. She is the best representative of Beethoven's "Fidelio" we have had in this country. Madame Johannsen has entered the ranks of the musical profession in Boston. In that city her fine musical taste, cultured in the best German school, will be highly appreciated.

CERESA is a tenor who is soon to appear in German as Eleazar, in Halevy's "Jewess," at the Vienna Opera House. He was formerly first tenor at the Italian Opera. Having amassed a large fortune, he retired. He lost it all, however, by unfortunate speculations, and determined on returning to the stage. He is said to possess a voice such as has not been heard since Fraschini was in his prime.

ROSA D'ERINA (or O'Toole,) the Irish vocalist, who sang in New York lately at the French concert for the relief of wounded soldiers, will soon give a series of concerts here. She has been popular in Ireland, and on a visit to Paris, the Temps said: "Sweden has produced two great cantatrices, Jenny Lind and Mlle. Nilsson. Ireland is jealous of Sweden, and has this season flashed to us a star, Miss Rosa O'Toole."

ANNA MEHLIG, in an editorial correspondence from Boston to Watson's Art Journal, is thus spoken of: "In ten concerts she has played ten grand concertos by different composers, and all of first-class difficulty. She played them all with great difficulty to the text, with unerring acuracy, and with much force and brilliancy. Her interpretation of all of them was honest and pains taking, and of some broad and intellectual, together with a tenderness of sentiment which gave here and there fine poetic coloring to her readings. She has a clear fine touch, a powerful wrist, and a certainty in execution of all classes of music and all classes of difficulty which does not desert her under any circumstances. Her school may be said to be eclectic, for she is familiar with all schools, and is almost equally at home in every style of composition; at least she gives to all an intelligent and appreciative reading. She is deficient in abandon which is the vitality of passionate expression, and is somewhat scholastically cold; but taking the whole scope of her accomplishments, she is a pianist of remarkable ability and fully entitled to a first-class position in her profession."

The balls all entered from behind. Speed escaped.

HENRY HOSTETTER, not the one of bitter renown, but an old and wealthy citizen of Louisville, has been sued for $20,000 for breach of promise made to a sixteen year old girl, Theresa Giblbaus. The old man who has been a widower for but three months, promised to deed two farms valued at $15,000 to Theresa before marrying her. The wedding day came, but as the farms had not been transferred Theresa refused to marry, claiming that she would fulfill her part of the contract as soon as her dear Henry fulfilled his, and now having waited for three weeks for him to do so, she has brought suit for breach of promise.

THE Atlanta Constitution, of Monday, gives us this little piece of romance: "At the State fair, yesterday, among the crowd who were examining the exhibition of cooking being given by the Stewart stove, was a young lady, who seemed determined to understand all its operations and merits. A gentleman standing by remarked to a friend, 'That young lady will make a good housekeeper.' The friend replied, 'Allow me to introduce you, and perhaps you may have an opportunity of testing her housekeeping.' The result, we are informed, was that before the parties left the grounds, there was a mutual understanding by which a new housekeeping establishment will soon be opened. Succes in life to them.

CURIOUS CUSTOMS.

The St. John, N. B. Fishermen.

[Correspondence of the Montreal News.]

Curious, too, it is to mark how their seafaring habits tinge their speech. Servant men and servant girls are said to "ship" when they hire for a month or for six months. A fine stout lass will ring at your hall door, and inquire whether you want to "ship a girl," and when a young couple are engaged they are said to be "shipped." A congregation will talk of "shipping" a new clergyman. The master of the house, whatever his calling, is invariably "the skipper." Even persons are "skippers" of the church, and at their homes are inquired for under this familiar designation. The best society is called "merchantable"—that being the term for fish of the first quality; while the lowest stratum is "scruff" or "dun." Flags are in universal request. Every merchant has his flag at his storehouse or wharf; a vast number of private houses have each a flag-staff, and on holidays or occasions of rejoicing the flags are hoisted. When the schoolmaster desires to indicate that the school hour is at hand he elevates his flag—hauling it down "half-mast" when but five minutes remain, in order to quicken the steps of the loiterers. When, in other lands, "holy bells would knoll to church," the "beadle" here raises, on a staff in the churchyard, a standard, on which is emblazoned the mitre of the cross. On the hill that overlooks the harbor of St. John, masts and yards are erected, and on these the movements of approaching vessels are signalized by flags; at times these yards look like a linen draper's shop—from the quantity of cloth hanging in the wind. A very useful purpose is thus served. The merchant is made aware that his vessel is in sight, and the whole town that the mail packet or one of Allan's steamers is approaching.

PEACE vs. WAR.

The Consumption of Gunpowder.

[From the Boston Journal of Chemistry.]

It is generally supposed that in time of war there is a vast increase in the consumption of gunpowder; but this is not the case. It is a curious fact that the arts of peace require a much larger use of the explosive than the arts of war, and that, consequently, France and Germany will burn less gunpowder from month to month during the contest than they otherwise would if peace had continued. Even in the severest and most protracted battles comparatively little is burned. One of the owners of a large powder mill in this State informed us recently that he could make at his establishment before breakfast any morning all the powder that was consumed at Gettysburg. Gen. Butler stored more powder in his "bombship," which he exploded against Fort Fisher, in North Carolina, than was fired in some of our most important battles. War takes from mines, manufactories, farms, &c., tens of thousands of men who are constantly engaged in consuming gunpowder for various purposes. In the army they pass months, perhaps years, in idleness, and no occasion is offered for its use except in salutes, &c., so that they actually consume less in service than out. There was, during our contest, especially during the first part of it, increased activity among the powder-makers, and the materials of gunpowder rose in price, but a very small part of that manufactured was ever consumed. The government has now on hand, in its magazines and arsenals, prodigious quantities; enough, probably, to carry us through two such wars as the last. It may be further observed that probably not one ounce of gunpowder in twenty used in battle does any execution. Its explosion serves to increase the "noise and confusion," but comparatively very few are hurt through its agency."

The Eastern Church.

The services in the new Greek Chapel, in the house of the Rev. Bjerning, No. 951 Second avenue, were to have begun yesterday, but have been postponed for two weeks, owing to unavoidable delays. Much difficulty has been experienced in passing the cases containing the sacred vessels and altar ornaments through the Custom House. These utensils are not only very numerous, but are also of great value, as they are nearly all of gold or silver. The floor of the chapel will be richly carpeted, and although in Eastern churches worshippers are not permitted to sit down, respect has been shown to the customs of the West in this instance, and benches have been provided. The Greek ritual stands midway between the Roman Catholic and Episcopal. In communion elements both kinds are administered and prayers are offered for the dead. The Greek Church does not, however, believe in purgatory, but only prays that God will be merciful at the day of judgment. The vocal music is excellent, and is always performed by boys and men only. Infants are confirmed and admitted to communion immediately after the sacrament of baptism. The clergy are divided into two classes, the higher, which embraces the patriarchs and bishops, who must live in celibacy, and the lower, who may marry before their admission to holy orders. The confessional is less strict than in the Roman Catholic Church. There are about one hundred thousand souls in the world who profess the Greek faith, half of whom are inhabitants of Russia.—N. Y. Post, 17th.

A WEALTHY lady of New York recently went through an extraordinary performance. She gave out her engagement to a gentleman in Washington, had the cards sent out, the guests came in numbers, many presents were sent in, the clergyman was ready, the bride waiting, but the groom came not. On an explanation being demanded of the astonished gentleman, it appeared that the whole thing was a delusion, or an invitation of the lady's, without the slightest knowledge of it on his part. It was a sad case of "marriage on the brain."

WHILE DEMOCRACY is so jubilant over the signs of the times, and the great victory Democrats have won, the figures seem to teach something rather the reverse of this assertion. Mr. Meyers, the Democratic nominee in the Sixteenth district, had a majority over Cessna, the Republican nominee of about fifteen. But in Bedford county, the home of both the candidates, the party majority for the Democratic nominee, was cut down from 347 to 32. The signs of the times do not augur well in Bedford county.

OHIO RIVER.

The bridge over the Ohio river has become the occasion of some threatening articles. We gave to our readers a few days since an extract from a letter written by the President of the bridge company to Mr. Theodore Cook. To this Mr. Cook has replied, showing the fallacies of all the arguments offered in support of the bridge, and pronouncing them, as indeed they really are, narrow-minded and selfish opinions. The charge is made directly by Mr. Cook, that the bridge company has cheated the people most flagrantly and taken advantage of a concession granted them to erect a bridge that will obstruct navigation. The Cleveland Leader winds up an article by saying, "Cincinnati is interested in having the bridge built, and will, no doubt, defend till the last drop of blood and the last cartridge. So if Pittsburgh wants a pleasant winter of it, she can have it by opening a campaign against that bridge." It is evident from the tone of the press that the citizens of Cincinnati, as well as those of Pittsburgh and New Orleans, feel deeply aggrieved at the fraud practiced on them, and that if the bridge is built it will be after a desperate effort is made to prevent it. We scarcely think, however, that the bombast of the Cleveland Leader will help the bridge company or exalt the paper.

But there is little use of the Cleveland Leader or any other journal making Pittsburgh the object of its attacks, or of any self-interested President of the Bridge Company trying, by absurd arguments, to convince the people of Cincinnati that Pittsburgh alone is making objections. It has been but a day or two since the Merchants Exchange at St. Louis condemned the further construction of the bridge, and passed resolutions urging Congress to prevent its erection. The Secretary of War has become somewhat interested and appointed General Warren and Colonel Roberts, of the U. S. Engineer Corps, a committee of examination, and these gentlemen are probably on the ground by this time.

It is not a question of Pittsburgh interests, but of every city on the Ohio and indeed the Mississippi river, and the attempt to single out Pittsburgh as the sole city interested, is a failure. From all appearances we must say that the bridge will not be built, and that Cincinnati will rejoice over the fact of the obstruction to the Ohio being prevented. We might add that we can hardly understand the effort of the Cleveland Leader, particularly as in the same article it asserts that "half a million dollars' worth of coal barges are annually sunk by running against these river obstructions (bridges), and Pittsburgh thinks that the thing has gone far enough." Pittsburgh does think so, and in this opinion is endorsed by so many other cities, and by the sound sense of every thinking man, that we will be surprised if the boast of the "admirable investment" made by the President of the Bridge Company will not be found to have been made a little too soon.

ALABAMA CLAIMS.

Under the heading of "Do we want war with England," the Cincinnati Commercial quotes the President as saying in reply to the declination of Senator Morton, "I regret that the country is not to have your valuable services at the English Court at this important juncture." This the Commercial argues means the Alabama question and war. Under an elaborate argument that England will fight sooner then pay the Alabama claims, and that should such a war arise there will be a resurrection of the Southern Confederacy, it is urged that the United States allow England a little more time, and that that country would develop an active anxiety to come to a settlement. While we think that the whole article is making a mountain out of a mole hill, and that the remark of the President, while he had reference to the adjustment of the Alabama claims, had no significant meaning attached to it; yet, even if it had, it is about time we were getting these Alabama claims settled.

So far from delay being of any advantage, it is a decided and positive disadvantage. While no one would urge involving this country in a war when it could be avoided, yet if our nation takes a stand and makes a fair and equitable demand, it is cowardice to retreat from the position and virtually abandon that claim by delays that avail nothing. Nor is there any argument advanced why those claims should not be settled. While it is asserted that England has been acting in such a manner with reference to the Franco-Prussian war that contempt for that government is almost a prevalent feeling, and that our administration at this day making an imperative demand for the settlement of the Alabama claims, would open a way for England to retrieve her reputation by at once refusing settlement and involving us in a war when her powerful navy would come in competition with our weak naval force, even if true, is no argument. But it is not true.

England to-day is in more danger from the results of the Franco-Prussian war than we could possible be from a second southern insurrection. A mighty army is almost knocking at her gates. Her conduct has excited the condemnation of the Prussian government. Her sympathy with that nation is very questionable, and more than all, should France be compelled by an attack on and the destruction of Paris be compelled to make peace, England, with a war on her hands, would be perfectly powerless to prevent what she might deem an extortionate demand of Prussia or a violation of her treaty with regard to Belgium. The "sick man" that has been groaning under British exactions could be swept away from the face of Europe as a nation, and Russia and Prussia make just what arrangements pleased them best. It would require all of England's navy to affect us, and her navy gone, her military force would be nothing but a farce.

But we do not fear a renewed Southern insurrection. The sentiment of the South-notwithstanding the violent declamatory speeches made here and there, is widely different from that which pervaded the minds of the Southern people prior to the rebellion. A little of the vain-glory has departed from Southern men, and they have realized a solemn truth in the stern lessons they have been taught. "Southern chivalry" would be a weak reed for England to rely on, and as Napoleon found on reaching the Rhine, so would England find on reaching our Southern coasts, that the nation was a comparative unit.

But we have not the most remote idea that England will refuse the peaceable adjustment of the Alabama claims. All we need is to be represented by a Minister who will not trifle with his instructions, but demand our national rights. This temporizing is as contemptible as English mediation. It must lower us in the eyes of other nations, and we most earnestly urge that the settlement of these claims be promptly demanded. If the worst comes to the worst, we must take the consequences and England must do the same. If we do not intend to stand by our claims, if legitimate, we should not have made them. They are legitimate, we have made them, and we will stand by them. We have already made a deal of noise, had long correspondences, have intimated what we were going to do, have really threatened, and let us either openly and plainly withdraw those claims, or else, let the consequences be what they may, demand their settlement, even at the mouth of the cannon.

We regret with the President that Senator Morton has declined. The bitter tirade of abuse heaped on him by the Pall Mall Gazette is sufficient evidence to us that his appointment was most excellent, and that had he accepted there would have been an end to this controversy. Let the Minister who will be appointed be one like Morton. A man who recognizes that we are "a first class nation" and have a first class reputation to keep up. Some one who will forget his individuality, and be neither flattered nor bought into English toadyism. Some one who feels a profound sense of the dignity he represents, and who will represent us without eternally and everlastingly flattering himself with the idea that he has justly honored the United States by consenting to represent that country at the Court of London. We have had too much "Flunkeyism" and want a little change. Whoever may be appointed we earnestly hope will strictly carry out the views of the President, without setting himself up as a signboard with which to guide the Government. If the proper man is appointed the Alabama claims will be speedily adjusted, and that, too, without any war. But war or no war, either abandon the claims made, or enforce them, and that speedily.

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

The Methodist State Convention, held some days ago in Philadelphia, was largely attended. Bishop Simpson presided. The statistical report showed that this Church had fifteen hundred and forty-five ministers, local and traveling, and a membership besides of one hundred and thirty-two thousand six hundred and forty-two. Estimating the population of the State at four millions, this Church by its ministrations reaches one-tenth of the whole population of the State. The number of Sunday School children and teachers was reported at one hundred and forty-four thousand two hundred and forty-three, over fifteen per cent. of the whole number of children in the State. Value of Church property nearly seven million dollars. Benevolent contributions something less than one hundred and forty-five thousand dollars.

The American Unitarian Association, a portion of which proceedings appeared in our dispatches, held recently in New York, had four hundred and ninety-seven delegates registered, from one hundred and eighty-three churches. Among the prominent things discussed, was the need of having the best preaching the denomination can offer at the Capital during the sessions of Congress, and that a fund of one hundred thousand dollars should be raised for this purpose. The Conference, under the wise counsels of Dr. Bellows and others of the more prudent leaders, wisely avoided the proposition of adopting a Creed, and thus prevented any serious break between the churches.

A young Indian, was ordained a Priest of the Roman Catholic Church, at Larette, near Quebec, recently. He takes the name of Vincent, and is said to be the first red man made a Priest.

The Jesuit Fathers of St. Francis Xavier College have organized a body of "missioners" to travel through the country ready to attend whenever called upon by the secular clergy.

It is claimed the second largest Presbyterian church in number in the United States, was started by a young woman, Mary Edwards, in a private house in Binghamton, N. Y., sixty years ago. She kept up a female prayer meeting regularly for fifty years.

The New York Tribune gives an account of a late meeting of the Boston Baptist Association, in which it appears that many disabled and worn out ministers are in most distressing circumstances—the result, of course, it says, of the easy way in which pastoral relations, in old times only loosed by death, are now dissolved, partly through the fault of the pulpit, and partly through the fault of the pews. One case was mentioned of a Baptist clergyman who not long since died a pauper in a workhouse in Southern Massachusetts. Quite a nice sum was raised to support the disabled.

Sunday week a meeting was held in New York in the interest of the American Tract Society. The following items of information were presented: It aids missionaries by printing in one hundred and fifteen languages and dialects. Nearly six hundred thousand dollars has thus been expended in foreign lands. During the past year about sixty thousand dollars worth of books and tracts have been distributed gratuitously, and during the twenty-seven years organization four thousand five hundred men have been employed by the Society to perform missionary service.

Rev. Howard Crosby, D. D., a distinguished Presbyterian minister and pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church, of New York, has been elected Chancellor of the New York University, and he has accepted. His duties are to be confined to a general supervision.

At a recent weekly meeting of the Presbyterian clergy in New York, the question was discussed for the third time, viz: "The limits of Christian charity in our treatment of Roman Catholics." The question was pretty thoroughly discussed, and the drift of the argument was that the greatest charity should be exercised to every Roman Catholic, as to any one else, in business and other relations, but as a religionist, not to hold fellowship with one who advocates very dangerous errors and regards a Protestant as a heretic.

The colored Baptists of Kentucky are taking steps to erect a theological school at Frankfort this winter. They have paid for fifty acres of land for this purpose.

The Lee Avenue Reformed Church, Brooklyn, has recently been beautified within and without. The room where this famous Sunday School is held, said to be the largest in the United States, has received additional ornamentation. The principal objects are life-size full length paintings of the twelve apostles, so done as to appear each to occupy its distinctive niche.

The New York correspondent of the Presbyterian gives a glowing account of the condition of the Presbytery of New York, brought out in the proceedings at the late meeting of that body. Nearly thirty young men appeared before the Presbytery desiring license to preach the Gospel. One of the candidates had been a Roman Catholic priest, and served as a parish priest in Spain for about two years. When he completes his studies in this country he intends to return to Spain as a missionary.

The Presbyterian Synod of Missouri, "Dedication and Testimony" faction, at their late meeting, resolved to take no steps looking towards organic connection with any General Assembly, or any ecclesiastical body whatever.

The Presbyterian says the congregation of the West Spruce street church, Philadelphia, have elected, to serve them in the eldership, Mr. John D. McCord, for many years a useful and honored elder in the First Presbyterian church of Pittsburgh, Pa.

"The "Mite-chest System," introduced recently by the Protestant Episcopal Church in this country, for collecting funds for the mission work, is found to be a success. It is estimated that within one year from the time the first one was sent out, that from twenty-five to thirty thousand dollars will be realised from this source.

THE FIGHT IN EUROPE.

EDITORS GAZETTE: The unexpected length of the Franco-Prussian war, and the plottings of the various French factions, are like to result in one or more additional flash governments, to the many which have already given that country such an unenviable position in the political world. The miserable shuffling of the French to get themselves out of the war when they found their adversary too strong for them, on the plea that it was not their battle, but Napoleon's, was altogether unworthy of a nation making pretensions to honor; for everybody had the evidence at hand to show that the Emperor was abetted in all his acts, and that they only deserted him when he was no longer able to lead them in their aggressive movements.

What will eventually result out of the present complications may be a subject for the guesses of the curious; certainly there is nothing in the character of that mercurial people upon which we can base anything more tangible than a guess, though the chances of arriving at the true solution by that method are very remote.

A republic in Europe, established on a true foundation, with an intelligent people strong in numbers to uphold it, and steady in purpose to give it public confidence, would be a mighty lever to overthrow old and effete powers, to disenthral the people and to elevate them to their true position in political and social life. While the rise of such a state is greatly to be desired, we have no reason to suppose that there is such a one now in existence; the few men who have taken in hand the government of France at this time constituting just as truly a despotism as did Napoleon, when he wrested the power from those to whom it was delegated some eighteen years ago.

The inhabitants of Paris may be credited with nearly all the positive movements that are made in France, whether for peace or war, and whether for empire, kingdom, republic, or anarchy. They give the word, and the outlying cities and provinces of that country are expected at once to concur; and, strangely enough, they do concur, and with the most astonishing alacrity they bow to the whim of the Parisians, and range themselves in line, the moment they learn what is the will of the capital. As this assumption of authority to speak for the entire nation has been acquiesced in for a period of almost a hundred years, it is now well understood by both friend and foe that Paris is France, in that respect; consequently all military movements of the Prussians that have not in view the direct object of reducing Paris, are mere waste of time and life.

The population of that vast city contains an element of a kind that would hardly have any weight among a people differently constituted, but which is perhaps the controlling power there, in those sudden changes of government that periodically electrify the world. The element refered to is that of the FOUNDLINGS—these multitudes, for whom the authorities of Paris provide asylums and nurses, in their infancy, that they may turn and plague them in after life, when the powers of manhood have come into full play, untempered by the sweet influences of parent and home. There were received at the "Hospice des Enfants Frouves," at Paris, during the ten years preceding 1850, in round numbers, no less than fifty one thousand five hundred children, and of course they have been rapidly increasing since that time. Consider this fact, and it is easy to calculate from it that not less than a hundred thousand able bodied men are in their midst, whose lives are a standing reproach to their city, and who have no home feelings to guide or bless them. The frivolity and sensuality, as well as well as the pugnacity of the French, are intensified in this class to a ten-fold degree, unmitigated by the restraints that bear upon more fortunate members of society.

These outcasts from home mingle with the utmost freedom among all sorts of people, owing to the peculiarity of Parisian manners, and are ever ready to throw the State into confusion. Let then a few hot-headed men of high position and influence but give the cue, and suddenly the whole fabric of Government may be found tumbling to pieces, to be replaced by something totally different; sometimes at the expense of much blood, but again in the most peaceable and matter-of-fact way.

As these freaks of Parisian humor are totally beyond the power of previous calculation, and as they result in such tremendous consequences, it would appear as though the only place for an enemy to strike, with a hope of being felt, is Paris itself; for so long as that city remains untaken, all other successes but lash its people into greater martial activity and defiance.

Now that Metz has at last capitulated, there is another vast army of 160,000 men available. It can be immediately thrown upon the capital, there to unite with the force that already hems in the mighty in intellect, the great in art, the refined in pleasure, together with the low and debased of every degree; where they now boil in one fiery mass of indignant fury against their besiegers. A. F. M.

POLITICAL.

GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS is speaking in favor of Woodford in New York.

EX-SENATOR FRELINGHUYSEN, General Kilpatrick and Congressman John Hill are canvassing New Jersey for the Republican ticket.

SEVEN Republican members of the New Jersey Senate hold over this year, which gives the Republicans good ground for hope that the next Senate will have a Republican majority.

GOV. STEARNS, of New Hampshire, has appointed William S. Ladd to the vacancy in the Supreme Judicial Court of that State, which was declined by Harry Hibbard. Mr. Ladd is a staunch Democrat, and the only representative of that party on the bench of New Hampshire.

THE New York papers are calling upon Comptroller Connolly to make the full and formal report required by law, of the finances of the city. The Times says: "The Comptroller, Mr. Richard Connolly, by name, alias 'Slippery Dick,' dare not publish any statement of accounts. There is an immense deficiency in his department, amounting, it is reported, to between four and five millions of dollars, every dollar of which belongs to the public. This is the kind of management under which the city is placed."

THE New York Free Press, the organ of the Young Democracy, brings the following explicit charge: "Investigation in connection with the registry develops the following facts as occurring in 1868: At the residence of William Tweed, No. 197 Henry street, five persons were falsely registered as living with him. At No. 167 of the same street, Coroner P. H. Keenan registered eleven from his house. Peter Mitchell, of No. 84 Green street, had twenty-four registered from his house, when only three were legal voters."

ELIZABETH CADY STANTON has written a letter to Edward C. Studwell and others who presented her as a candidate for Congress in the Third New York district, in which she declines the honor. She says the Constitution excludes her because she is a citizen of New Jersey; and more than that, she does not propose to give up her "beautiful home on the blue hills of New Jersey and become a denizen of your dirty town!" She also concludes that the other candidates in the district are in favor of woman suffrage, and she will not interfere against them.

BRIEF TOPICS.

LA GRANDE NATION.

The Times correspondent at headquarters of the Crown Prince cannot repress his astonishment that the good citizens of Versailles should firmly believe the lying reports, according to which the Prussians lost 15,000 men, besides cannon, on a day when these same people saw with their own eyes—and they were in the very best position to see it—that the Prussian officers sat quietly chatting in the cafes, while the Crown Prince was at Ferrieres, and nothing of the slightest importance occurred. It is, in truth, a sort of monomania; the fixed idea that France is the grande nation, and must conquer as a matter of course, has so completely taken possession of the French that the evidence of their external sense counts for nothing.

FAITHFUL PRELATES.

The Belgian prelates have published pastoral letters begging the clergy and the faithful to remember the Pope in their prayers. These monseigneurs do not mince matters in dealing with the enemies of the Holy See. The Archbishop of Malines says that his Holiness is the victim of perjurers who set treaties at naught and violate solemn obligations. The Bishop of Ghent says that the Sovereign Pontiff is reduced to a choice between the Vatican and exile. One prelate draws a parallel between the Pope and Jesus Christ, pointing out that they have mocked him with royal attributes, cast a scarlet robe around him and crowned him with thorns. The Bishop of Ghent only asks for prayers in this lamentable crisis, but his more practical brother of Malines would like to have some money too.

A DELUDED KICKAPOO.

An exchange says: Out on the Union Pacific road, not long ago, a Kickapoo Indian saw a locomotive coming down the track at the rate of forty miles an hour. He thought it was an imported breed of buffalo, and was anxious to secure it, so as to take the prize at the annual exhibition of the Kickapoo Agricultural Society. So he fastened one end of his lasso to his waistbelt, and, when the engine got near enough, he threw the noose nicely over the smoke-stack. Perhaps it is not necessary, but we may as well relate, that the locomotive did not stop. The engineer and fireman witnessed the most successful attempt to do the flying trapeze made by any Kickapoo Indian upon the plains since the first of last January. There was an aboriginal funeral at the next station when the engine arrived. The grave was not large, for they only buried a small piece of the copper colored meat tied to a string and enclosed in a sardine box.

A WHIRLWIND.

Captain Terry, of the American brig Waverly, reports that on September 3, at 1:30 P. M., off the Rio de la Plate, they were struck by a tornado, or whirlwind of a singular character, and without any warning whatever, which carried away the foremast-head above the eyes of the rigging, the foretopmast, top-gallantmast, maintopmast, foretopmastm and jibboom, sails and yards all went over the sides together, into the water in one crash. No wind blew fore nor abaft the foremast, nor do I think there was any wind above the topsailyard, as none of the light sails were split or torn. It struck like a cannon ball, and passed as quick; the ship did not careen one atom. I think the gust was perfectly round, and about twelve feet in diameter.

ALIVE IN A COFFIN.

A strange case of suspended animation has just been developed in Washington. A girl sixteen years of age, named Ella Frerrer, a native of Virginia, died, to all appearances, last Thursday, at Hamstead, King George's County, Va., of typhoid fever. She was brought to Washington for interment in the Congressional Cemetry, over a rough Virginia road, and when the box was opened, a lady who was fixing her for the coffin saw a flush over her face, and very unmistakeable signs of respiration. The lady immediately became greatly alarmed, a doctor was sent for, and it soon became evident that the girl had really life in her. The physicians, however, could do nothing for her, their aid arrived too late. Galvanic batteries were applied with remarkable results, the pulse and respiration being restored for some time with feeble regularity, but the moment the artificial agent was removed, the girl lost all signs of animation. At last accounts she was undoubtedly dead.

A NEW REFRIGERATOR.

A machine is on exhibition in New York which is capable, according to the claims of the inventors, of producing ice for less than the natural article can be cut, transported and stored; and it can be at the same time used for refrigerating houses, halls or chambers with no further cost than the addition of distributing pipes for the cold air. Ships can be supplied with the machine, if properly fitted, and safely transport beef or other fresh food from the tropics or through them. In fact articles of the kind have been carried in this way between Rio Janeiro and England. With one of these wonderful machines a hundred tons of ice a day can be produced at a cost of only $1 to $1.50 a ton. If these claims can be verified, the days of ice extortion are surely drawing to an end; and we may ultimately expect abundant supplies of choice Australian, South American or Texan beef, fresh and in good condition, at five or six cents a pound. Let it be done.

THE FINEST PROTESTANT CHURCH IN THE COUNTRY.

Last week, Thursday witnessed in New York, the formal opening of the new St. Thomas Church, which is by far the most costly, and undoubtedly the most splendid Protestant edifice of its kind in the country. Connected with it is a rectory, and its 460 pews seat 2,000 persons. There are several galleries, an almonry, or room where alms are stored and distributed, a chapel, vestry, robing, choir, Sabbath school and library rooms, cloisters, a lofty dome, a tower not yet completed, and a porch of large proportions. The architecture is, of course, Gothic, the material stone, the windows of glass manufactured at Metz, France, and shipped to this country just in time to escape the Germans, and the pulpit, etc., of oak. The organ is divided between the two opposite sides of the chancel, and upon the top of the columns supporting the dome are statues of prophets and apostles carved, curiously, from wood, which has served as bowsprits of vessels long at sea, and has thus become thoroughly seasoned. This magnificent structure stands at the corner of Fifth avenue and Fifty-third street, and the entire cost, including lot 100 feet by 235, does not fall short of $750,000. Rev. Dr. Morgan is the rector.

A VICEROY'S ASSASSINATION.

The North China Herald gives the following account of the assassination of Ma, Viceroy of Pekin: "It appears that a relation of Ma, either by blood or adoption, was in poor circumstances at Shantuing, and, according to common usage, resolved to take advantage of his kinship with a person of the wealth which Ma was supposed to possess. Accordingly, he repaired to Nanking and claimed large pecuniary aid or a remunerative office. The latter alternative was, we are told, declined, but the Viceroy gave a considerable sum, which, however, did not by any means satisfy the applicant. He pressed for more money, wrote, obtained audiences, and, in a word, persecuted Ma beyond endurance. At last at a personal interview he was peremptorily told that if he was not satisfied he had better leave the city, for no more would be given him. Stung to fury by this intimation, he drew a dagger, and flinging himself upon the Viceroy, inflicted a wound in the groin, which is said to have transfixed his bowels and penetrated the skin in front. The assassin was immediately seized and secured, but as soon as the affair was known outside, a rumor was started, first, that certain Frenchmen had obtained access to the Viceroy and had killed him, and then that some of the French-disciplined soldiers, acting under foreign orders, had done the deed. The yaman was at once surrounded and carefully searched, but nothing to justify their suspicion was discovered. But as every attempt was made to keep Ma's dangerous state concealed, rumor soon became busy, and the most absurd stories were soon in circulation."

ST. CLOUD.

"I have already told you that wherever we enter abandoned villages and towns the clocks still stand on the mantel-pieces, but no longer indicate the hour. At St. Cloud this silence has its peculiarly interesting feature. I found clocks on the console tables of the Imperial chateau, which also marked the day. These recorded 'Sunday, 4th of September.' The end of the week was thus also the end of the dynasty. It is a pity that the splendid grounds have gone to rack. The flowers hang down their withered heads; the pheasants run about the park and look in vain for the hand which used to feed them. In the apartments the finest pictures are torn from their frames, probably by the faithful servants. In the hunting-box still hang two oil paintings, in which the handsome Eugenie, on horseback, surrounded by picadors and matadors, is depicted as presiding over a bull fight. Our patrols, of course, are stationed in the park. The reservoir is also surrounded by them. The patrols in their huts display the most various styles of buildings. Some are wigwams, some straw huts, some Swiss chalets, and others French cottages. They stand close together. I spent all yesterday with our most advanced patrols. They are comfortably settled under the trees, and one might indulge in the prettiest idyll but for the French grenades sweeping by and over us, the thunder of the guns interrupting our talk every five minutes, and the monotonons clatter of the chassepots so frequently breaking the thread of conversation.

A GREAT GUN.

A piece of Ordnance, it is stated, is now in course of construction at the Woolwich, England, founderies, which will surpass all previous attempts at building large guns. This piece of ordinance weighs thirty-five tons, and will be capable of discharging a solid projectile weighing seven hundred pounds, and a hollow skell weighing much more. The ordinary cartridge is to contain eighty pounds of powder, and the battering charge will weigh one hundred and twenty pounds. The gun will be rifled with nine grooves the twist increasing so that the ball will revolve once in passing over every 400 inches. The velocity of the shot, it is calculated, will reach 1,200 feet per second, and the range will extend to nine thousand yards, or over five miles. It is however, argued, that as the limit of sight is at most five thousand yards, the range of a gun beyond that distance is of small importance, except when firing at very long objects. Two vessels of war now building in England, it is announced, will be armed with guns of the above description, and will be protected with armor plating sixteen to eighteen inches thick. With this equipment, these vessels, it is believed, will be invulnerable.

THE TRANSPORTATION OF CARTRIDGES.

The English journals are complaining of the great risks to which travelers in England are subjected by the transportation of cartridges intended for the French service. The English manufacturers contend that acting on their superior knowledge of the trivial risk incurred, they are justified in surreptitiously transporting the cartridges by rail. It is stated that the explosion of one Boxer cartridge in a package of ten will not set off the other nine. It is further stated that the "declaration" on the package would insure the rejection of the bundle by the French Custom House officers, so that not only are the lives of English travelers placed in peril, but the French Customs laws are violated in order to promote the interests of English manufacturers in sending cartridges to France.

GRAVE YARDS AT A PREMIUM.

A recent discovery in Amelia City, Oregon, came near creating as formidable a bone excitement as that described by Truthful Jeames. A much decomposed skull was unearthed by a ditch-digger. Taking that practical view of the occurrence which distinguishes the settlers of our Western coast, the discoverer, instead of apostrophizing after the style of "Alas! poor Yorick," took his own hat off, put the new-found skull in it, and repaired to the nearest stream to "pan out." The dirt in the skull may be said to have caught his practiced eye. Nor was he mistaken in his surmise; the result of the pan was a yield of $12 in gold. Immediately he formed a stock company to buy up all the old grave yards in the vicinity, and various head stones and foot-boards that marked the resting-places of half-forgotten pioneers were staked out and prospected. Just about the time, however, that the stock was to be put upon the Portland market, some "scientific gent" examined more closely the fragments of the gold-yielding skull, and ascertained that it had originally belonged to a buffalo. As the chances of discovering other places of sepulture of that quadruped seemed remote, the stock was for the present withdrawn from market, by judicious friends. The discoverer does not, however, credit the buffalo theory, and wants to dig up the remains of "them Eastern fellers that came here long ago with more money than brains."

NEW POEM BY WHITTIER.

The following poem appears in the Boston Transcript. It was sent to a recent social meeting by Mr. Whittier, who is now at the Isles of Shoals:

From those wild rocks I look to-day
O'er leagues of dancing waves, and see
The misty coast-line stretch away;
And mark the spot where you must be.

I listen, and I seem to hear
The pleasant voices of old days,
The pines that shade the Isle of Deer,
The rippling river's song of praise.

Dear friends! I send you what I can,
I float across the severing tide
All that a shy or silent man
Could give if sitting by your side.

I thank you for sweet festal days,
For tender memories lingering long,
For joyful meetings, fond delays,
And ties of friendship woven strong.

Most vainly has your work been done;
For many a heart else cold and dim
Those sweet June days are shining on,
And woods and waters sing their hymn.

O friends! whose lives still keep their prime
Whose bright example warms and cheers,
Ye teach us how to smile at time
And set to music all his years!

Make room, O river of our home,
For other feet in place of ours;
And in the summers yet to come,
Lapse softly by the Feast of Flowers.

Hold in thy mirror, calm and deep,
The pleasant pictures thou hast seen;
Forget thy lovers not but keep
Our memory, like thy laurels, green.

MORE ARCHAEOLOGY.

The Mound Builders of Michigan.

The Kalamazoo Telegraph says: "On the north side of Rabbit river, in Allegan county, near the station of the Allegan and Holland Railroad, called Rabbit River, is a level piece of table land, and, where the axe has not done its work, covered with a thrifty growth of beech and maple, tall and straight, showing in its manner of growth that the land has been a forest comparatively a short time, that is, as the lives of forests are reckoned. This tract has a number of those curious ancient rings of earth scattered about. One, about five rods in diameter, is crossed by the stage road from Allegan to Holland. About forty rods from this one, and nearly north, is another, of the same dimensions, with a small mound near its southern side. This might have been made by an upturned tree, but no signs of the tree were visible in the slight examination we were able to give it, for the ground was covered by newly fallen timber, forming that chevaux de frise known to wood butchers as 'slashing.' About half a mile northwest, in a field, is yet another of these rings, larger in diameter than the other two. About thirty rods east of the last named circle is a mound of earth rather more than half the height of the one in the park, and covering about half its area. We found that a very rough attempt at an examination had been made by the summary process of digging a large hole down to the bottom, which was the old surface level. The result was the discovery of an absurd mixture of broken human bones and sandy loam, for the remains were so fragile that the spade passed through them, meeting no more resistance than the earth would give, although, where they were undisturbed, they were very compact, as though they had been beaten or rammed down. Clearing away the rubbish of former explorers, we made a trench on each side of the hole already made. Proceeding very carefully, we found that the earth was about eighteen inches above the remains. Then came the stratum of bones and loam. This loam had a grayish tint, as though ashes were mixed with it, and it was full of small pieces of charcoal, not bigger than kernels of wheat. The bones were packed and pressed closely together, anyhow, without any attempt at order; many of them were blackened as if scorched by fire. The remains seemed to be those of all ages and sexes, the skulls with very retreating brows and narrow; the back head was large and the skull very thick. Nearly on top of the mound were two trees, one about twenty inches through. The ideas forced upon us by this hasty examination were these: that when this plain was clear of timber, it was peopled by these circle builders; that some of them, to the number of fifty or seventy-five, were massacred; that an attempt was made to burn the pile of dead bodies with some light fuel, such as a great quantity of dry grass and weeds; then they were covered with the soil scraped in every direction to the pile, as the existing hollow shows yet."

Admixture of Races.

Nowhere, perhaps, says Prof. Agassiz, is the physical and moral deterioration of pure races so clearly shown as in Brazil. The hybrid between the Indian and the negro, called cafuzo, has none of the delicacy of the mulatto: his complexion is dark, his hair long, wavy and curling, and his character, instead of being confiding, but indolent, is described by Agassiz as exhibiting a happy combination between the jolly disposition of the negro and the energetic, enduring powers of the Indian. The hybrid between the white and half-breed is called mameluco, and is described as being pallid, effeminate, feeble, lazy and rathy obstinate, the Indian influence having apparently obliterated the higher characteristics of the white, without imparting its own energies to the offspring. Noticeable exceptions to this picture may be found in the half-breeds of the semi-civilized communities of our Southern Indians. It is very remarkable that the Indian, crossing with either a negro or a white, makes a deeper impress on his progeny than the other races, and, in accordance with this fact, it is observed that, in further crossings, the pure Indian characteristics are resumed, and those of the other races thrown off. "Let any one," says Prof. Agassiz, "who doubts the evil mixture of races, and is inclined, from a mistaken philanthropy, to break down all barriers between them, visit Brazil."

RICHARD WILLIAMS, of Moundville, Wisconsin, was met, near Portage, by three men, who assailed him with clubs, stones, and fists, till they supposed he was dead, when they took to the woods. Mr. W. was fearfully beaten—his face pounded to a complete jelly, one eye entirely closed and the other nearly so, his nose mashed, teeth gone, and nearly one-half of his head literally scalped, but he says he can identify his assailants.

Agricultural Items.

THE Red Rover is a new variety of potato transplanted to this country from the banks of the Red Sea, and are now being grown near Bristol, Tennessee. They are acknowledged to have no superiors in point of yield and flavor. They are said to yield one hundred for one, by good cultivation.

THE Aurora Herald describes a Yankee invention for catching the Colorado potato-bug, which consists of a wooden arrangement with a wire attachment which sweeps through the vines, cleaning off the bugs and boxing them at the same time.

WOODEN pails, painted on the inside with lead or baryta, are poisonous.

THERE are not over 2,500 pure Ayrshire cattle in the United States.

AN AUTUMN SUGGESTION.

Now, as heavy fogs arise and searching winds commence to blow; now, as the human body, exhausted like inanimate nature by the heats of summer, begins to wilt and droop; now, ere the inclement winter makes its trying onset; NOW is the time for a preparatory course of the best acclimating medicine in existence, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters.

Fever and Ague is rampant in all parts of the country. Quinine, the physicians admit, will not quell the phase of the disease which at the present pervades the entire West. It is well that it is so, for the remedy (so-called) is deadlier than the malady. But if quinine is inefficient in intermittent fevers, Hostetter's Bitters is irresistible. It would be safe to make a contract, under heavy penalties, than any given "Fever-and-Ague District" should be exempted from the disorder for any particular time, provided every inhabitant would take the Bitters according to directions during the term of the contract. There has never has been an instance in which this sterling invigorant and anti-febrile medicine has failed to ward off the complaint, when taken duly as a protection against malaria. Hundreds of physicians have abandoned all the official specifics and now prescribe this harmless vegetable tonic, and nothing else, as a preventive and cure for all the forms of chills and fever. Vigor is the thing most needful in these cases, as well as in dypepsia and nervous affect ons, and Hostetter's Bitters are the safest, surest, and most wholesome strengthening preparation that human skill has yet conceived.

GRATES! GRATES! GRATES!

Keep Your Houses Clean,

AND

BY USING THE

Wellman Patent Reflector Grate.

WHICH STANDS WITHOUT A RIVAL.

We claim for it the following advantages over any other in use:

1st. As a radiator of heat it has double the intensity.

2d. It is unquestionably the most cleanly—very little soot or ashes escaping into the room—which, in the ordinary Grate, proves so detrimental to carpets and furniture.

3d. The combustion is perfect. There is no waste in unburnt cinders—every ounce of the fuel is so completely consumed, that nothing remains but the finest ashes.

4th. As an economizer of fuel—there being an actual saving of at least 25 per cent.

5th. It is highly ornamental.

6th. It is set so deep in the chimney, that it is much safer, and also less liable to puff in windy weather.

7th. A slight motion of the shaker cleanses the entire fire, and causes it to burn with great brilliancy and intensity of heat.

Samples may be seen and references had at the store of W. BARNES, corner of 2d avenue and Market street, Pittsburgh; W. F. GOODWIN, 66 Federal street, Allegheny, or at the FOUNDRY, corner Duquesne Way and Water street, Pittsburgh.

Parties who are building, or who contemplate changing Grates, are respectfully requested to examine "The Wellman." Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases.

AN OPPORTUNITY

Seldom Offered

Is now opened for Investors and Capitalists to buy the guaranteed Second Mortgage Six per cent. Bonds of the

Indianapolis & Vincennes

RAILROAD COMPANY,

Guaranteed by the Pennsylvania Central Railroad Company, as the following able opinion will explain for itself, to-wit:

NEW YORK, July 16, 1870.

GENERAL A. E. BURNSIDE. DEAR SIR.—We have examined the two contracts of guaranty, dated 1st of July instant, executed by the Pennsylvania R. R. Co., and deposited with the Farmers' Loan and Trust Co., by one of which the Pa. R. R. Co. guarantee the payment of the principal and interest of the exchanged or substituted bonds secured by the first mortgage of the Indianapolis and Vincennes R. R. Co. to Edward Pearce and William Goddard, Trustees, for $1,700,000, and by the other, of which the Pa. R. R. Co. guarantees the payment of the principal and interest of the second mortgage bonds of the Indianapolis and Vincennes Railroad Co. for $1,450,000, and we are of the opinion that these guaranties are in proper legal form to bind the Pennsylvania R. R. Co; that that Company is fully authorised by law to enter into such guaranties, and that the bondholders, in case of need, can bring suit in their own names respectively, on the guaranties thus with the Farmers Loan and Trust Company for their benefit.

Yours, respectfully,
[Signed] CHARLES F. SOUTHMAYD,
Of Evarts, Choate & Southmayd.

We concur in the above opinion.
[Signed.] MILLER, PEET & OPDYKE.

Only a LIMITED FEW of the above bonds remain unsold, at the fixed rate of 80 and accrued interest from May 1st. They have 20 years to run, pay 6 per cent. interest per annum, semi-annually; and, being GUARANTEED by the PENNSYLVANIA CENTRAL RAILROAD, makes them as desirable a HOME INVESTMENT as the Pittsburgh Fort Wayne & Chicago Railway bonds, guaranteed by the same Railroad (P. C. R. R.) Company.

THE DAILY GAZETTE.

MONEY AND COMMERCE.

OFFICE OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, FRIDAY, Oct. 28, 1870.

There is still inactive demand for money. There is more tardiness in closing up the quarterly payments for October 1st than was generally anticipated, therefore a more urgent demand for loans. We hear considerable complaint in this direction. Small traders who stand but little chance for bank accommodation, and have therefore more need to husband their resources, allege that many of the large houses, purchasers of manufactured articles, treat the payment of a quarterly bill quite as a matter of convenience. This is all wrong. Pay, you that have the means and credit, and give the small dealers, to whom sometimes fifty dollars withheld causes perplexing trouble, a fair chance in the race for wealth or a competence. Be just; be neighborly.

The bond and stock market continues dull. A few stray lots of bank shares offering, but the prices are high.

Allegheny Valley bonds are held at 89¾@90, and but little doing in them. Connellsville 7's are quiet. Holders asking 90.

There was further enquiry to-day for small lots of Columbia oil stock, for which 10,50 was bid, but we could learn of no sales.

The New York market is heavy. Gold has dropped to 111⅛, and U. S. Bonds are weak, in sympathy with the decline in gold.

The railway market seems to be in the hands of the bears, and, as will be seen by the comparative statement below, is nearly one per cent. lower on the entire list, than yesterday.

In miscellaneous shares Pacific Mail, Western Union, Mariposa and United States Express were the weakest stocks. Indications are that large holders have been sellers to-day, whether with a view of making a turn or to unload it is impossible to tell.

PITTSBURGH MARKET.

The capitulation of Metz, has produced a still further decline in gold, and Sugars, Coffees, and Breadstuffs, and all other commodities, that are imported and exported, and which are effected by gold, are weak and drooping in sympathy with it. Wheat is reported as having declined to [illegible] in Chicago to-day, and refined sugars are said to have dropped ¼ in the east. This is the lowest point wheat has touched in Chicago for several weeks, and it may go still lower, there is no telling where it will stop; though, after all, there is no good reason why there should be a permanent decline in Breadstuffs, as war or peace, France and Prussia will be obliged to draw on this country heavily for supplies for a year to come. The weakness in Sugars and Coffees is easily understood, as the time is drawing near, 1st of January 1871, when there will be a reduction in the duty, and this of course makes holders anxious to realize, as they want to have as little stock on hand at that time as possible. There is very little left of the hog product in this market, and this seems to be true of Cincinnati and Chicago, though the demand as always is the case at this season of the year, is also light. There is a continued steady demand for produce, in Butter, Eggs, etc etc., and prices generally are well sustained.

APPLES—We can report a continued steady demand, and notwithstanding the arrivals continue large, prices are fully sustained, ranging from [illegible] per bbl, for fair to prime, and [illegible] for choice.

APPLE BUTTER—Quoted at 70@75 cts.

ASHES—Common soda ash, 4; refined, 4¾; Pearls, 9¾; Pots 7¾.

BAKING POWDER—Banner ½-lb cans $1.75 per dozen; ¼-lb cans $1.25; 1 lb cans, $6 per doz.

BEESWAX—Sales at 33 to 35 cents.

BEANS—May be quoted at [illegible] per bushel for common to good and [illegible] for prime navy.

BUTTER—Prime roll is scarce and in good demand while common and medium is as dull as ever. Sales of the former at [illegible], the outside figure for choice.

BROOM CORN—Is quiet and unchanged, at [illegible].

CIDER—The demand is rather better, though there is no change to make in quotations, [illegible] per bbl.

CHESTNUTS—Scarce and in demand with sales at [illegible] per bushel.

CRANBERRIES—In moderate demand with sales at a variety of prices, ranging from $12 @17 per bbl.

CHEESE—Is firm and higher. Western Reserve, 14@15c; Ohio Factory, 15@15½c; Ohio Goshen, 15@16 and New York Goshen, 16@17.

COAL—Sales of Anthracite at [illegible] per ton by the car load, delivered.

CARBON OIL—Is weak with a drooping tendency, though unchanged; Standard brands at [illegible], and straw color about a cent less.

CORNMEAL—Is dull and may be quoted at [illegible] per bushel, for mill lots in store.

DRIED FRUITS—Quiet; small sales of peaches (prime halves) at 9@10 cts. Sliced apples, 9@10 cts.

EGGS—The receipts continue light, and the stock in this market is very much reduced. We now quote at 28@29 for fresh.

FLOUR—The market is weak and tending downward, though there is a continued fair local demand. We now quote spring wheat at $5.75@6.25, and winter at $6.00@6.50, according to quality. Rye flour is still quoted at $5.50 and dull.

GRAIN—There is a fair milling demand for wheat and with continued light receipts, prices are maintained, notwithstanding the decline in the west; we continue to quote at $1.15@1.22 for fair to choice red, and $1.30@1.35 for white. Oats steady but unchanged, 43@45 buying, and 47@48 selling for round lots—small lots, in store, 50; sales two cars reported at 47. Rye is unchanged at 80 in first and 85 in second hands. There is no improvement to note in the demand for corn and while the market continues dull, prices are unchanged; 75@80 for old, and 55@60 for new. Barley is again weaker, under the influence of the advices from the west, and buyers continue to hold off, anticipating a still further decline; we are reported a sale a good Ohio spring at 90, No. 2 Chicago, taking Thursday's quotations as a basis, can be laid down here at about 94 or 95.

GROCERIES—Refined sugars are reported off a ¼ in the east, and coffees are also weak in sympathy with the decline in gold, though as yet there has been no corresponding decline here; it is likely, however, that there will be a reduction here, unless there should be a reaction, of which there is not much prospect at present.

COFFEE—Choice Rio, 22; Prime, 21½; Good, 21; Fair, 20; Ordinary, 18½@19; Java, 26; Laguayra, 22. Roasted Coffee, loose 23; in papers, 24.

SYRUPS—Havemeyer & Elders, 80@90; Loverings, 65@70; other brands, 45@75.

RICE—Carolina, 9@9¾; Patna, 8¾@9; Rangoon, 8.

MOLASSES—New Orleans, 85@90; Porto Rico, 60@70; Demarara, 75.

HAY—Is selling from country wagons at $12@20—mostly at $14@17, and there is an improved demand.

HONEY—Sales at 30@35 cts.

HUSKS—Sales at 3@3½ cts.

LIME—Sales of Cleveland at $2.35 per bbl and eastern at $1.75.

LARD OIL—Is unchanged at $1.18@1.20 for Extra No. 1, and 85 for No. 2.

MILL FEED—Sales two cars seconds at $1.15 and one car No. 2 middlings at $1.80.

PROVISIONS—Stock almost exhausted, though the demand is falling off, and the season is about over. Plain shoulders 14¾@15; no sides; plain sugar cured hams 25@26½. Lard 16½@17 in tcs, and 18 in half bbls and kegs. Mess Pork $27@27½.

POTATOES—Prime peach blows scarce and in demand at 80@85. Sweets are in rather better demand and higher; we now quote at $3.50@4 per bbl.

PETROLEUM MARKET.

The most important feature to notice in connection with the Petroleum trade to-day, was a very perceptible weakness in the crude article, and in the afternoon the feeling seemed to prevail that the bottom had dropped out of the market. As to what was the cause of it, nothing very definite can be assigned, further than it was reported that the crisis for this month had been passed, that with the settlements that have already been made, there is not much doubt but what the remaining "shorts" will be able to procure sufficient oil to fill their contracts. Furthermore, the pressure for cars on the Valley Road is said to have slackened up somewhat, which is also good evidence that the demand for early deliveries is not so great, and this may also be regarded as an indication that the "tight place" which has been predicted for some time past, to take place in this month has passed; for weeks past many operators have been very anxious for an early bulk rise, being apprehensive that the light receipts and reduced stocks, would lead to a "corner" about the last of the month; but now that there is no probability of anything of this character, these same parties are indifferent about a rise, though, of course, it would be better for the trade at large, particularly for our manufacturers, if there was a rise, as it would increase the supply, and tend to equalize the prices of crude and refined which has been a serious barrier in the way for some time past.

CRUDE.

Sales 1,000 bbls October at 9¼; settlement of 2,000 bbls at 9½; 2,000 bbls (tank oil) spot at 9¾; 500 seller next week at 9¼. At 4 P. M. there were no buyers for spot above 9¼, and it is probable that a number of settlements were made with this as the basis. November may be quoted at 9; seller all year nominal at 9½.

—Since the above was put in type we have the following additional sales reported; 1,000 seller November at 8⅞; 1,000 do at 8¾; 500 at 8⅝; 6 cars spot at 9⅛.

REFINED.

October reported steady at 23¾, with sales of some 4,000 barrels; we can report sale of a "call" for 2,000 bbls first half of 1871 at 22¾ and $1 per barrel—equivalent to 25 cts if taken, and a loss of $1 per bbl if not "called" for; in other words, the buyer paid $1 per bbl for the privilege of oil within the time mentioned at 22¾ cts. November and December nominal.

PITTSBURGH IRON MARKET.

Operators in raw irons continue very light, and buyers generally continue to restrict their purchases to supplying of immediate wants. The receipts continue light and the stock in yards is by no means large, and many of the mills, we understand, are almost bare. Prices are nominally unchanged, but the market is in that peculiar condition that a very little pressure to sell would probably cause a decline.

For manufactured iron the market is fairly active, but it is said that orders are not coming in so freely, which would seem to indicate an early curtailment of trade, though stocks are very much reduced and prices are maintained. As we have repeatedly noted, margins are very light, and it is this more than anything else that has enabled Pittsburgh to compete successfully with rival points.

RIVER NEWS.

The river rose several inches during Thursday night and yesterday, and last evening the pier marks indicated 4 feet 6 inches Weather cloudy and raw, with indications favorable for more rain.

The Carrie Brooks, from Zanesville, with a good trip, is the only arrival we have to report. She was so unfortunate as to crack one of her cylinders, which, it is thought, will have to be replaced by a new one. This, of course, will delay her departure for several days.

The Monongahela river boats are doing a heavy business.

The Brill has been withdrawn from the Brownsville packet trade, and will probably go below. It is reported that Capt. Dan Moore will temporarily assume command of the Brill, and Capt. Aull will take charge of the office.

The Glendale for St. Louis, and the Messenger for New Orleans, will depart as soon as there is sufficient water.

The Carrie Brooks will return to Zanesville to-day, notwithstanding the accident to her machinery.

The numerous friends of Capt. James Collins will be glad to learn that his health is improving, and that he is now considered out of danger.

Both the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers were rising at head waters yesterday.

The Argosy, it is said, will be placed in the Wheeling and Pittsburgh trade again. Business has not been very good in this trade recently, though it may improve.

—A Vicksburg paper says: Capt. Cannon announced his intention to retake the Princes horns, and judging of the great run of the Lee, under the present circumstances, we think it probable that Captain Leathers will have to make another contest for their retention.

—Tuesday's Memphis Sun says the Natchez made $20,000 by her fast time to Natchez. She now carries the horns of the Princess. The Lee says she can beat the Natchez thirty minutes. Easier said than done.

—A report was started in St. Louis on Monday that the new steamer Susie Silver had sunk near New Orleans, and 75 persons drowned, but it proved incorrect, as the boat arrived safely.

—The steamboat R. E. Lee's time to Natchez was sixteen hours, thirty-six minutes and forty-seven seconds, beating the time of the Natchez fourteen minutes and forty-three seconds.

—W. B. Stanley sold on Saturday to Capt. E. Carpenter, of New Albany, a pair of steamboat engines and a doctor. The engines are 9½ inch cylinder and a 3 foot stroke

—The boat Jeannie Bonnie has gone down to sea, having failed to go up the Mississippi higher than St. Louis. She is a six ton craft

—The City of Vicksburgh took 1,000 tons to Memphis, 500 of which is for Livepool, England, direct on a through bill of lading.

—Capt, James Warman has returned to Memphis from the Ohio, whence he went pilot on the Eckert some time since.

—The Leonora No. 2 will make daily trips between Madison & Louisville hereafter.

—The Tobe Hurt has finished the survey of lower Cumberland river.

—The new crop of sugar is arriving freely at N. O. per steamer.

The Bonds are issued at $20,000 per mile against the portion of the line fully completed and equipped.

The greater part of the road is already in operation, and the present earnings are largely in excess of the operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work necessary to establish through connections, thereby shortening the distance between St Paul and Chicago, 45 miles, and 90 miles to St. Louis, is rapidly progressing, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which, it is estimated will double the present income of the road.

The established character of this road, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings, warrant us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors, as, in every respect, an undoubted security. A small quantity of the issue only remains unsold, and when the enterprise is completed, which will be this Fall, an immediate advance over the subscription price may be looked for.

These bonds have 50 years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the Company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to cause them at an early day to command a market price considerably above par. U. S. Five-twenties, at present prices return only 4¾ per cent. currency interest, while these Bonds pay 9¼ per cent., and we regard them to be as safe and fully equal as a security to any Railroad Bond issued; and until they are placed upon the New York Stock Exchange, the rules of which require the Road to be completed, we obligate ourselves to rebuy at any time any of these Bonds sold by us at this date at the same price as realized by us on their sale.

All marketable Securities taken in payment free of Commission and Express charges.

Correction.—In an article published yesterday, we stated that the Mayor had visited the Homeopathic Hospital to have a sick boy admitted, but had failed. We were misinformed as to the matter as we learn from the Mayor himself that he did not make application to the Hospital. We deem this correction due to the Managers of the Institution in question and make it cheerfully.

East Birmingham.—The authorities of East Birmingham have decided to have a lock-up, and at a meeting of the Special Committee appointed to superintend the matter, held on Thursday evening, a plan was submitted. The lock-up will be erected on Larkin's alley, on the Walton Engine House lot, and will be about 22 by 22 feet, having six cells, three on each side of a six foot hall, and an office fronting on the alley.

Colonel and Aid-de-Camp.—Peter A. Johns, Esq., of Uniontown, Fayette county, has been appointed and commissioned aid-de-camp, with the rank of Colonel, of the State National Guard.

The appointment is a meritorious one, as Col. Johns has not only been a strong supporter of Governor Geary and a staunch Republican, but served with him as a private in the Second Pennsylvania Volunteers during the Mexican war, and served through the war of the rebellion as Major of the Eleventh Regiment Pennsylvania Reserves.

The Pittsburgh Brewery.—This establishment, one of the largest and best in the whole country, and which in past years earned great celebrity for its "India" and other choice brands of ale, has come again into possession of Mr. Joshua Rhodes, by whose skill and enterprise its former high character was created. The lovers of fine flavored, pure and wholesome ales will see by his advertisement in another column, that Mr. Rhodes has returned to, and resumed the management of the above named Brewery, and is resolved to raise its standard higher, even, than before, and we feel perfectly safe in predicting his entire success.

As the leaves turn from red or yellow to crisp brown and fall from the trees, and as the weather grows colder and winter with all its rigors and pleasures approaches, we naturally begin to think of preparing to fortify ourselves against the cold and endeavor to get as much enjoyment out of the season as we can. We know that there will be piercing winds, days of blinding sleet, and others where the soft flakey snow floats thickly about us and drenches almost like rain the poorly clad mortals who are exposed to its dangerous beauty and cold attentions, and knowing this we will, if we are sensible, and most readers of the GAZETTE are that, wend our ways to some such establishment as that of Messrs. McPherson & Muhlenbring, and there endeavor to choose from among the mass of handsome goods, material for stout business suits, warm yet graceful evening suits and snow and sleet defying great coats, knowing that any goods to be found in that house are perfectly reliable, while the cutting and making are sure to be of the first quality, while the style, if left to them to determine upon, will be one which artistically will be in accord with the person, age and appearance of the wearer.

Fifteen Years Blind.

The individual who boasts that he has been in business in the city for fifteen years, and has not, during that time, paid a cent to any newspaper, rode up in one of the Wylie avenue cars the other evening. He is no better off now than he was when his father started him in business at that time. He is probably twin-brother to the pious old fellow who, in telling his religious experiences to young converts, said: "I bless God that religion is cheap; here have I been a member of this church for over fifteen years, and it has never cost me one cent!" At which the minister, whose salary was perhaps in arrears, exclaimed: "God bless your stingy old soul!"

Beaven & Halloween.

We commend our readers, men, women and children, to the store of Geo. Beaven, 112 Federal street, Allegheny, as the place for everything required for the customary celebration of Hallow Eve. All kinds of nuts, confections and condiments suited to the tastes of young and grown up children are for sale. Mr. Beaven's store has, from his small beginning a few years ago, grown up to the full stature of a complete and well-stocked establishment, where all sorts of canned fruits, pickles, catsups, sauces, preserves and candies in great variety of home and foreign preparations, and nuts, raisins, figs, dates, &c., &c., can be had of the choicest quality, whether for special or ordinary occasions, and Mr. Beaven keeps up his stock with great industry and fidelity, and is, moreover, a most accommodating and polite salesman, with whom it is always pleasant and safe to have dealings.

Professor Evans.

According to public announcement, Professor W. M. Evans, A. M. gave select recitations last evening in the new and beautiful hall of the Mercantile Library Association. The hall was comfortably filled, and the auditors were principally professional gentlemen, manufacturers and leading merchants of the two cities. It is seldom that he have seen (to use a sterotyped, but in this case a really significant phrase) such an appreciative audience. Mr. Evans is a reader of superior merits, and the enthusiastic applause accorded him last evening afforded full evidence that some "prophets are not without honor in their own country." His renderings were true to nature. His voice is elastic and was well modulated. The intonations were in perfect keeping with the spirit and character of the subjects rendered. His gesticulations were graceful and appropriate, and not too profuse. His voice became somewhat broken after the recitation of Horatius at the Bridge, which was the "gem" of the evening, but, although not so full after that effort, was nevertheless under complete control. Few elocutionists have ever given such entire satisfaction to a Pittsburgh audience as Mr. Evans did last night. We have no doubt but that he will be invited to appear frequently before our citizens.

A COLLISION.

Smash Up On the Pan Handle Road—Larceny Extraordinary.

There was a slight accident occurred at Cork's Run on the Pan Handle road, late Thursday evening, by which two freight trains were partially wrecked, but fortunately there was no loss of life and no one seriously injured. It appears two freight trains were coming east, one closely following the other, and when coming down the grade to the river from the Tunnel, four or five cars on the front train became detached, and the engine with the front part of the train left them some distance behind before the conductor discovered the break in his train. Knowing that the grade was pretty heavy and that if the brakes were not put on the detached cars they would soon overtake the front part of the train which was "slacked up" after the discovery, the engine did not run back to make the attachment at once. The brakemen on the detached cars put on the brakes, however, and they were brought to a stand still. As soon as this was ascertained, the front part of the train started back to get the lost portion of the train, and knowing that train No. 2 was due, a flagman was sent back with a lantern, but not in time to save the collision. Train No. 2 came up at the usual rate of speed, and the engineer and fireman seeing the danger ahead, and knowing that it was impossible to prevent a collision, whistled "down brakes," reversed the engine and jumped off. The engine of train No. 2 ran into the caboose car on the front train and was considerably damaged. The caboose was litterally wrecked, as were also a number of freight cars in both trains, many of which were run into each other, after the manner of the telescope. The cars were loaded with flour and tobacco, and the collision occurred on a fill where there were high embankments on either side, the flour, tobacco and groceries were sent rolling down the embankment, and strewed along the bank in grand confusion. Many of the flour barrels were bursted and the flour scattered over the ground.

The attaches of the road who were with the train hurried to the scene of the wreck as soon as the first excitement was over, and notwithstanding the fact that but very few minutes had elapsed, they found but little of anything that was movable or of any value left. They arrived on the ground just in time to see two skiffs loaded with the spoils crossing the river to Allegheny. Even the stove which was in the caboose car, and which, it is claimed by the conductor, was red hot but a few minutes before the collision, had disappeared.

Mr. C. H Brashear, freight agent of the road at Birmingham, made information before the Mayor charging Larry Lyons with the larceny of one of the barrels of flour. A warrant for his arrest and a search warrant were issued and placed in the hands of officers Long, Cupples and others who arrested Larry and found in his house, not only two barrels of the flour, but about three hundred pounds of the tobacco which was secreted in the cellar and covered with coal. Another house in the neighborhood was visited and over two hundred pounds of tobacco found secreted in a bed, and Mrs. Maurice, the occupant of the house, was taken into custody. Both the prisoners were brought to the lock-up, where they still remain awaiting hearing.

Notice of Removal.

The steady increase and present magnitude of our business requires better facilities and much more room than the buildings we now occupy afford, and to meet this want we have the pleasure to announce to our many patrons and friends that we have leased two of the new and spacious store rooms in the Library Hall Buildings on Penn street, for the retail branch of our business exclusively. These rooms will be fitted up in the most attractive and elegant style, and with every needful arrangement for the comfort of customers.

We expect to have them ready for occupancy about the first of December.

In connection with the above notice, we may say, that with ample facilities for the importation of European fabrics and the purchase of home products direct from manufacturers, and the knowledge gained by many years' experience of the wants of customers, we confidently hope by well-directed efforts and energetic arrangements to make this new location the most popular resort in the city.

As we intend opening the Penn street stores with an entire new stock, we will be ready in a few days to announce a great clearance sale of everything in our retail department in the Market street store, at wonderfully low prices.

The wholesale business will be continued at Nos. 77 and 79 Market street, and the entire buildings will be stocked with choice goods exclusively for the jobbing trade.

JOSEPH HORNE & CO.,
Nos. 77 and 79 Market street.

District Court—Judge Hampton.

FRIDAY, October 28.—Court convened at 10 o'clock A. M., Judge Hampton on the bench. The case of Rodgers vs. Robinson & Co., previously reported, was resumed and submitted to the jury but a verdict had not been agreed upon when Court adjourned.

Before court adjourned some of the Attorneys called the attention of the Court to the fact that the list from Allegheny county would be taken up in the Supreme Court on Monday next and continue for two weeks and that many of the members of the bar would necessarily have to be in attendance. Judge Hampton then announced that Court would adjourn for two weeks from next Monday.

IMPORTANT ARREST.

A Notorious Burglar Arrested and in the Lockup.

For some weeks past the detectives of this city have been on the lookout for Thos. Scott, alias Fox, a notorious burglar who sometime since was arrested in Philadelphia but escaped from the officers, and was afterwards arrested and confined in the Wilkesbarre jail for a burglary committed in that town, from where he also escaped and came to this city. Shortly after Scott's arrival here the detectives ascertained that he had entered into an arrangement with others to break open the safe at the Agricultural Works at Columbiana, Ohio, and the fact was communicated to the managers and the job frustrated.

The next night, however, a safe at New Brighton was broken into and robbed of its contents, and as Scott was absent from the city it is presumed that he had some connection with the affair. Last night Chief Hague and some of his officers arrested Scott at Gallagher's Saloon, on a warrant which had been issued some time since on a charge of assault and battery on oath of a conductor on the Oakland Railway. He is now in the lock-up awaiting a hearing, and if the authorities at Philadelphia or Wilkesbarre want him they should send for him.

A CONFLAGRATION.

Fire at Croton—Glass House Burned—Loss Fifty Thousand Dollars.

Between twelve and one o'clock yesterday morning, a fire broke out in the Glass Works of C. Ihmsen & Sons, at Croton, a town about two miles from New Castle, destroying the entire works. The fire originated in the flattening house, and before it was discovered the flames had made rapid progress as to defy the efforts made to suppress them. The entire works and a number of tenement houses were destroyed, involving a loss of about $50,000, which is fully covered by insurance.

The Place to go to get the worth of your money is by calling at the large book establishment of R. Miner, 71 and 73 Fifth avenue. Books, stationery and other articles in the trade may be bought at extremely low prices. Persons calling through the day can purchase at private sale, and at night goods are offered at public auction, or on private terms if desirable. Now is the time to secure books for reading at the fireside these long nights.

The Morning Light Stove, introduced by Hubley, the Housefurnishing merchant, of Allegheny, this season, is a decided improvement on any heretofore offered in this market.

MEMORIES OF THE WAY.

A Silver Wedding Occasion—The Success of a Worthy Couple—Their Journey Along the Years—Gathering of their Friends—1845—1870—A Brilliant Company and a Princely Entertainment.

"There are moments of life that are never forgot,
Which brighten and brighten as time steals away;
They give a new charm to the happiest lot,
And they shine on the gloom of the loneliest day."

It is pleasantly refreshing at times to revive memories of the by-gone—to recall earlier and happy hours—the memory of which seems to shed a brightness over all the past. There are occasions in all lives which deserve to be remembered, the retrospection of which is no idle dreamy reverie, but ever full of pleasure and profit, inspiring, encouraging, consoling amid all the vicissitudes of life. And thus have arisen those beautiful customs of remembering each recurring anniversary of memorable days—the natal time, the advent of manhood, and the day of willing sacrifice to Hymen's gentle power. Especially are these eminently happy when the intervening years have left no trace of sorrow for the event, but have only served to brighten and hallow and beautify its remembrance. Happy are they to whom "the lines have thus fallen in pleasant places"—whose past is but one of joyful recollection.

Among those who have thus been highly favored of fortune is that estimable couple, Mr. Wm. Smith and his companion, whose "silver wedding" commemoration was the event of our fashionable society last evening. Of those who have received congratulations over such happy circumstances, none have been more worthy of their fortune or more deserving the good wishes of acquaintances. Twenty-eight years ago the gentleman who is now recognized in the front rank of our business community entered our city without friends or money, with nothing but an honest purpose and a willing hand, to achieve success in life. The end of a sojourn of three years in the vicinity finds him a young man hardly passed his manhood one of a firm, by whom was erected the first iron foundry west of the Alleghenies. Prosperity had attended him and the youth almost unknown three years previous found himself flourishing and on the road to fortune. Thus circumstanced he felt himself able to start anew in the journey of life, and that years, a beautiful evening of October 1845, found him united in marriage to Miss Pemela Mayler, a daughter of one of the most respected citizens of Stoffordshire, England. The engagement had been made in England, previous to the gentleman's "crossing of the waters" and its consummation was attended with the most auspicious circumstances. The father of the lady had been the confidential adviser and agent of Lord Ward, the present Earl of Dudley. She had enjoyed unusual advantages of society and education, and was, alike in temper and mind, possessed of unwonted amiability of character. Of her companion, the most deserved compliment that could be paid him, was the recognition which he then and has ever since received, as a practical man, thoroughly versed in his business and full of energy and intelligent enterprise. Thus these two with peculiar similarity of disposition, commenced the matrimonial pilgrimage, whose course has been one of uninterrupted harmony, beautiful as a cloudless summer day. The success which had attended Mr. Smith's first efforts was but an augury of that to follow. The years rolled by, wealth flowed in upon him, his enterprises, always extending, were crowned with the richest success, until he now stands at the head of his business—the sole proprietor of the largest pipe-manufactory establishment in the world. Fortune had been lavish in her favors, and after twenty-eight years of toil abundant prosperity, beyond his most sanguinary imagination, has rewarded his labors.

If success in business was marked, that in the social walks of life was none the less, so. Preserving the same uniformity, the happy couple gathered about them friends, cordial and hearty, the number of whom increased as fast as they were known. The same kindly hospitality and cheer, charity and benevolence which won them friends has also given them a position in society proportionate with their many excellencies.

Their union has been blessed with a family of nine children. Three of these now peacefully sleep in the churchyard. In the remainder, the parents have the fullest enjoyment and pride. The eldest, Mr. Roland H. Smith, is our worthy and efficient County Gas Inspector, a young gentleman of fine talents and culture, to which all testify who have had business or social intercourse with him. The second, engaged with his father in the management of their immense works, gives evidence of eminent future success. All have the characteristics of careful training, and are regarded by their acquaintances as full of promise.

In their domestic life Mr. and Mrs. Smith, have alway been remarkable for genial hospitality and unstinted generosity.

In business he will be remembered as the embodiment of strict integrity and kindly courtesy, united to indomitable perseverance, qualities which have made him at the age of fifty years one of the wealthiest of our citizens. Mrs. Smith in social life emulates her husband, and whether in the relation of wife, mother or mistress of one of the most hospitable of households, receives the hearty commendation and love of children and all acquaintances. With such a record it is not to be wondered at that the estimable couple, in reviewing the years of their sojourn together, should decide to commemorate the happy anniversary of their union in a marked and appropriate manner.

The celebration last evening, however, had a doubly pleasant import from the fact that it also comprised a wedding reception to their second son, Mr. W. H. Smith, who was united about ten days since to one of Allegheny's favorite belles. The young couple returned from their tour the evening previous just in time to join in the happy "silver wedding occasion."

Invitations had been issued to about two hundred and fifty guests, who began to drop in at the palatial mansion, No. 31 South Canal street, Allegheny, at an early hour. The cards had intimated that it was but an ordinary gathering—the annoyance of presents being thus with prudent tact avoided. The residence, one of the finest in the city was brilliantly illuminated throughout, and under the gaslight, decked as for a gala day, presented a gorgeous appearance. All formality was thrown aside, and as the guests arrived they were greeted with a cheery home warmth which at once set all at ease. The elegant parlor had been duly prepared, and George's excellent band engaged for assistance in the terpsichorean exercises. The invited ones put in appearance quite early and by nine o'clock one of the most brilliant companies we have ever seen, had made the house a rendezvous. Old and young mingled in the throng and pleasure in the highest degree was depicted upon every countenance. while the host and hostess moved among their friends with a hearty welcome and greeting for all. When the festivities were at their height, a delegation comprising the Water Committee of the Pittsburgh Councils, arrived, and helped to swell the joyous company. Among others were observed a number of officials of both cities, who, for a time, seemed to have forgotten the cares of official life, and for the nonce given themselves over to the enthusiasm of the occasion. All went merrily, happily and harmoniously.

The table had been spread in the dining rooms, and here the same tact had been preserved in providing seats for all. The company were then invited to enjoy the feast in a comfortable manner—an improvement which was highly relished. And what shall be said of that table. If the confectioner's art was not exhausted in its arrangements, it was simply because Hubley had no further knowledge of it. In its whole length, glistening with all that could tempt the appetite, it formed an ideal feast, such as that with which the festive pedagogue of Sleepy Hollow engaged his fancy in his imaginative hours. There were cakes, pound cake, jelly cake, sponge and spice cake and—the whole family of cakes, not to mention fruits of the vine, and fruits of the orchard, beside products of the air, and the water, representatives of the forest and—the whole tribe of that animated creation, personated in savory stews, and roasts and broils; then, too, the confectionery,—who could name it,—all mingled in such countless profusion that none but an epicure could ever hope to unravel all the mystery. One peculiar manufacture at the head of the table represented a miniature branch pipe made of white French candy, bearing the inscriptions "1845" and on the reverse "1870." It served as a receptacle for a beautiful and fragrant boquet, and was facetiously—though not inaptly termed the "Smith coat of arms." Another unique attraction occupied the centre of the table. It was a design of the mistress of the house, and represented a square tower of maccaroni and white candy, worked in beautiful patterns. On each of the four sides was a representation of a clock, the hands of which indicated the time—five minutes past eight—the exact hour twenty-five years ago, when the Rev. Mr. Silliman had pronounced the worthy twain, one. Over the clock was a dove with outstretched wings, while above rose the pinnacles of the tower. It was the most exquisitely beautiful affair we have ever seen on a banquet board, and was alike in the highest degree a commentary on the taste of the lady and the skill of the confectioner. But it were impossible to enumerate all the attractions of that board. Only to those who were eye-witnesses of the splendor could its beauty and gorgeousness be fully appreciated. It was surrounded about eight o'clock by the first company, who had previously stimulated the appetites by dancing in the room above. They, as well as the half dozen other collections who successively gathered around it, were not at all loth to do silent though emphatic justice to its attractions.

The attractions of the table, however, were not the chief sources of entertainment. Dancing was taken up soon after the guests arrived, and during the evening was engaged in by old and young with apparently an equal zest. Conversation and delightful music at intervals further served to beguile the hours, which passed so delightfully and unconsciously that all regretted vastly when the hour of separation come. The cheery host and admirable hostess, as well as the younger couple, who also joined in the honor of the occasion, received many sincere and heartfelt congratulations. Although it was expressly understood that no presents would be received, yet a few intimate friends did bring their offering along, and they could not but be accepted. The two grandchildren of the older couple thus remembered them by appropriate presents, as well as others of the company. Mr. Smith, as a memento of the occasion, presented his companion with a solid silver gold-lined set, pearl chased, and the most elegant workmanship of that character we have ever seen. In return he received from her a complete set of table furniture, knives, forks, spoons, &c., all of solid silver. A cake basket of solid silver was also presented by a friend, together with other smaller articles, which, though not numerous, were of the most superb finish. These spontaneous and irrepressible evidences of admiration were not among the least interesting features of the occation.

But the most agreeable associations must be broken up, and this "silver wedding" gathering had to succumb to the same edict. As the hour "ayant the twal" began to come on a pace, the guests gradually separated, unanimous in their expressions of praise at the success and unlimited pleasure which had attended the celebration. Each departed with kindlier feelings toward their generous and respected entertainers, and all united in wishing them a still more prosperous and joyous future—all joined in the sentiment as they recalled the memories of the occasion.

"Long, long be their hearts with such memories filled,
Like the vase in which roses have once been distilled.
You may break, you may ruin the vase if you will,
But the odor of roses will cling to it still."

A Desideratum.—The "Morning Light Stove."

Amusements.

OPERA HOUSE.—The audience at the Opera House last night was large and select, and the entertainment was one of the most interesting of the season. It was the occasion of a benefit to Mrs. Bowers, one of the most talented actresses on the American stage. "Lady Audley's Secret" was presented in a most acceptable manner. Mrs. Bowers will appear at the matinee this afternoon, and also this evening.

ACADEMY.—The charming "Sappho" continues to delight the patrons of the Academy. The entertainments of the Sappho troupe are of an excellent character, and should draw large audiences. This afternoon there will be a grand "Sappho" matinee, and a closing entertainment this evening.

VARIETIES.—Jester is the leading feature at the Varieties this week. He is a marvel in his way and must be seen to be appreciated. Cool Burges is also a show in himself. Go to the matinee this afternoon.

YESTERDAY, through the error of a printer, we were made to speak of the Mendelssohn Club as a Quartette instead of as a Quintette, but the mistake was of comparatively small movement in a case like this, where every one is supposed to know already what the combination is. In order to instruct the few who are unacquainted with the most famous of concert troupes, we shall now state that it is composed of five artists, Messrs. Wm. Schultze and Carl Weisel, violinists, Mr. Thos. Ryan, performer upon the viola and clarinette, Mr. Edward Heindle, on the viola and flute, and Mr. Wulf Fries, violincello. In addition to the quintette of instruments, Miss Addie S. Ryan, the distinguished songstress will take part in the concerts in this city.

Have You Bleeding at the Lungs?

This is a serious affliction, whether it is inconsiderate or not, because it is a premonotary symptom of some more formidable disease of the lungs, and we know of no remedy of equal power for its cure to be compared with DR. KEYSER'S LUNG CURE, which not only heals and cures the ulcerated lungs, but at the same time restores the general health and strength of the body. Most medicines are weakening in their effects. Not so with DR. KEYSER'S LUNG CURE: it heals as it goes, and it strengthens while it is curing the most violent cough, one or two doses of which is often sufficient. The former editor of the Evening Mail was cured of a violent cough, by only two doses of DR. KEYSER'S LUNG CURE, and it did so without weakening or sickening him, or stopping him one hour from his usual occupation. No remedy has ever been discovered for coughs and pulmonary diseases equal to DR. KEYSER'S LUNG CURE. Call at the Doctor's Medical office, 167 Liberty street, Pittsburgh, and he will examine your lungs and tell you all about it. If your druggist does not keep it, send five dollars to Dr. Keyser, and he will send four bottles securely boxed, by express, with full direction how to use it.

Changing Seasons.

Summer having gone and winter fast approaching is indicated by the weather of the past few days. Those interested in the matter of introducing the new styles have been busying themselves about the cut and material of gentlemen's and youths' dress. Foremost among them in our city who have prepared themselves to supply all demands is the well-known house of Wm. Hespenheide & Co., No. 50 Sixth street. They are now prepared to furnish men and boys with clothing made in the style for the season and of a material which is to be worn during the cool weather. As in the past, they have been acknowledged to be the connoisseurs of the town in matters of clothing, so in the future we feel confident they will uphold that reputation. With their new stock and increased facilities for conducting the business, they ask a continuance of the patronage heretofore bestowed upon them, satisfied that they cannot be excelled. The store is at 50 Sixth street, near Penn.

Balance of Stock Arrived.

The widow of Mr. J. A. Tobias arrived here yesterday with the balance of the large and extensive stock of clothing which was imported and manufactured by J. A. Tobias, deceased, consisting of the finest brands of imported cloths and cas meres; also, agent for King William and Crown Prince suits. Mrs. J. A. Tobias, on account of declining health, wishes to return to England to reside with her brothers-in-law, the celebrated English watchmakers, Tobias & Co. The goods are open to public inspection. This is a rare chance to buy bargains, 13 St. Clair street.

N. B.—Storekeepers are invited to examine this large and extensive stock of clothing. tf

The Stove of Stoves is the "Morning Light."

The "Morning Light."

Geo. W. Hubley, the noted house furnishing merchant at 68 Federal street, Allegheny, in his irrepressible determination to have the best of everything in his line, has found and offers for sale a stove called the "Morning Light," which defies all competition. It is suited to the parlor, library, office or chamber, and possesses all the merits of the "Morning Glory" or "Oriental," with the important improvement that it is necessarily and absolutely free from dust. Those who will examine this stove will be convinced that it is a very pretty, a very good, a very cheap and positively anti-dust stove. THS.

The Continental.

The most delicious bivalves of the season may be had to-day, fresh, at Holtzheimer's Continental, Fifth Avenue. This however, is not the only feature of the Continental. Everything that is appetizing and healthful can be had there in abundance and in endless variety. Holtzheimer makes the wants of his patrons a study, and therefore is always ready to respond to their demands. At any hour of the day the table will be found ready at a moment's notice. No time is lost waiting, and the central location of the saloon further adds to its attractiveness for business-men especially. This has made the Continental so popular with all who can appreciate a well conducted restaurant.

As the season for parties, balls and banquets has been fairly inaugurated there is much inquiry among the managers of such affairs for a reliable confectioner to whom they can entrust the arrangements necessary to the success of the entertainment. No difficulty will be experienced if the confectioner, J. B. Youngston, is employed. His long experience in the business has familiarized him with the every detail and all may rely upon him with perfect safety. His establishment is at the corner of Smithfield street and Diamond alley.

If the good deeds which men do, live after them, certainly Liebler, the Trunk King, will be remembered in after time, as he is now, with fervent devotion by every traveler, for the improvements he has introduced into that line of manufacture, and the consequent comfort and pleasure he has placed within the reach of the travelling public. Liebler has an establishment at 104 Wood street.

"The Morning Light," for day or night.

Pittsburgh is a city of the greatest importance to the country at large. Its iron interests, coal beds, oil trade, and Pier Dannals & Co's. cream ale render it indispensable to every American.

The Morning Light speaks its own praise.

THE report of the chief commissioner of the British police, which has been recently laid before Parliament, contains one item of information which will somewhat surprise the writers and readers of sensational novels. We learn, says the Pall Mall Gazette, that that mysterious body whose preterhuman sagacity and marvellous organization are so dear to popular fiction—the detective police—actually consisted up to the middle of the year 1869 of fifteen persons only, a number hardly sufficient to meet the constant demands made upon the force by Miss Braddon, Wilkie Collins and others of the same school. In June of 1869 the Secretary of State sanctioned an increase of the number, and the detective force now attached to the metropolis comprises a superintendent, three chief inspectors, three inspectors, forty sergeants and one hundred and sixty constables.

PLATINUM has recently been discovered in Lapland and in Westphalia, a province of Prussia.

ON the 8th of October the number of French prisoners in Prussia was 3,557 officers and 123,-700 soldiers.

IN consequence of the war between France and Germany, Japan has issued a neutrality proclamation.

THE Mobiles receive 1 franc 50 centimes a day. They don't find it at all too much at present prices in Paris.

A GRAND European Journalistic Congress will be held in the city of Frankfort, in Germany, next year.

A WRITER in an English journal recommends that army officers on half pay be given the duty of census takers.

CHINA puts in a claim to the origination of chromo-lithography somewhere about the beginning of the Christian era.

IN addition to 1,100 cannon, 12,000 Chassepots, and 6,000 cwt. of ammunition, 50 locomotives were captured in Strasbourg.

THE squares and pleasure grounds of Paris have been planted with cabbages and cauliflowers for the use of the inhabitants.

A NEW theatre has just been built in Dresden in place of the one destroyed a few years ago. The cost of the new theatre was more than $250,000.

BY way of a horticultural novelty there has been a fungus show in the grounds of the Royal Horticultural Society in London. It excited great interest.

IT is reported up to the 12th instant about twenty French villiages had been burnt and 150 peasants shot for carrying on illicit warfare against the Germans.

THE Times thinks that Count Bismarck must see the disadvantages to Prussia of a protracted war exceed any advantages that can be derived from prosecuting it.

SPAIN supplies more wine to England than France and Portugal combined, the figures being: Spain, eight millions of gallons; Portugal, three millions; and France, four millions.

M. LEON GAMBETTA and his fellow voyagers of the air are quite sure that Paris can hold out indefinitely. It is not, in their opinion, a rash illusion to think that the place is impregnable.

THE Krupp shells sent by the Prussians to Paris are said by the Precurseur d'Anvers to be three feet in length, and to contain seventy pounds of powder. Similar shells had been sent to Metz.

THE Director of the Museum of Natural History at Buenos Ayres, Argentine Republic, narrowly escaped being killed lately by one of his servants, who attempted to avenge a supposed wrong.

ONE of the vacant places in the Spanish Order of the Golden Fleece is to be given to the Suitan. This order, which is common to Spain and Austria, was founded by Philip III., Duke of Burgundy, in the year 1429.

A NUMBER of Alsatians have gone to Berlin to pass examination for the position of Criminal and Circuit Judges of their native province, which is assuming more and more the character of a German country.

THE mint at Bordeaux has recommenced its work, ingots of silver have arrived, and the manufacture of coin has begun. New five franc pieces are appearing in circulation, which have been struck from the patterns of 1848.

THE share of Bavaria of the spoils taken at Sedan, was 91 pieces of field artillery, 49 heavy guns, 20 mitrailleuses, 346 wagons, 15,660 chassepots, 2,850 other guns, 730 sabres, 370 cuirasses, 264 lances, and 500 quintals of powder.

MANY of the Prussian soldiers wear underneath their shirts a piece of sole-leather about ten inches square which is hard enough to turn a bullet, unless struck perpendicularly, and is a good defence against the lance or sabre.

PRUSSIA is prosecuting its occupation of France in a most systematic manner. Those parts of that country now occupied by them are being canvassed by assessors, and the tax levied in them will be the same as in North-Germany.

AN Acapulco letter says: The crops on this coast have never been so promising as now, and in some parts the price of mais has already declined 24 per cent., because the first harvest, called tonacmil, has turned out to be very abundant.

THE peasants in the neighborhood of Paris seem to have submitted to the inevitable with resignation, and given the Prussians very little trouble. There have been a few cases of telegraph wire cutting, two of which were punished with death.

BAVARIA must support now twenty thousand French prisoners, at a daily cost of 19,999 florins. This will, of course, be all counted up in the war expenses. We are afraid, however, that Bismarck's bill will be bigger than France can pay.

FORMIDABLE engines of war are said to be in the course of manufacture at Lyons, and experiments have been made with a steam mitrailleuse at 1,200 metres, which were, it is said, satisfactory. The inventors say that the range of the machine is 4,030 metres.

THE number of sheep exhibited at the great fairs of Ballinastoe, Ireland during the past ten years were:—1860, total, 81,061; 1861, 75,118; 1862, 71,997; 1863, 93,494; 1864, 71,356; 1865, 66,530; 1866, 89,942; 1867, 73,364; 1868, 75,042; 1869, 74,012. Last year the sales amounted to 70,787.

ACCORDING to the Berlin correspondent of the Times, Baden, Wurtumburg and Southern Hesse have signed their intention to join in the North German Confederacy, and ratify its constitution with some slight modifications. The King of Bavaria still holds back.

ACCORDING to the Bund of Berne, France is threatened with a loss of territory in her African colony as well as at home. An insurrection is said to have broken out in Algeria, and in the province of Constantine it is reported to be supported by many powerful tribes.

IT is said, in the wine trade, that the Prussians have given permission to the houses in Champagne to carry their wines in wagons to the nearest town in Belgium (probably Mons), whence they may be conveyed by rail to Antwerp or Ostend. This is considered an important concession.

THE Yokohama Gazette of September 23d says: The army and navy are both on a more legitimate footing than heretofore, and everything seems to point to a long period of repose, such as may give the Mikado and the ministry time and opportunity for consolidating matters in the Empire.

THE Viceroy of India entered Jeypore on the 10th instant. The procession of nobles and their retainers was a mile long, and included eighty elephants. Troops lined the road for miles. The Viceroy and the Maharajah entered on the same state elephant. It was a magnificent spectacle.

A CORRESPONDENT at Boulogne writes that during the actions before Orleans the new Irish legion in the service of the French Republic distinguished itself particularly. It was commanded by Col. Lawler, an ex-Confederate, and is composed of young men mainly from the vicinity of Dublin.

AMONG the many grotesque means of saving the country projected by France, the formation of a corps in the department of Gers is one of the most remarkable. Its members are all dressed in black, and are all under the vow of strictest silence. All commands are given by signs. Their banner is a skull.

A MEETING of the Liberal party has been held in Stuttgart to consider the political future of Germany. The meeting adopted a resolution expressing a hope that a legislature in common, a diplomatic representation in common, and a united army would be obtained on the basis of the North German Federal Constitution.

DR. HALE is about to resign the bishopric of Perth in Western Australia, to which he was appointed in 1857. The Bishop was once Vicar of Stroud, in Gloucestershire, and the sermons of the white-haired old man, ringing with eloquence, will long be remembered by all the old worshipers at St. Paul's and Westminster Abbey.

IT is observed in many quarters that the German war intelligence is less exact and free from tendency to accept impossibilities than earlier in the campaign. This is attributed to the lull after intense excitement. Having begun so well it is a pity that the Prussian press should not maintain its reputation to the end of the war.

THE Osservatore Romano, which has been discontinued since the Italian occupation of Rome, will re-commence its publication about the middle of this month, resuming its old programme, and retaining the same writers as heretofore. The Civitta Cattolica, which has also been silent since the 20th of September, will likewise appear.

A CENTRAL School Board, to consist of fifty members, has been determined on in London, England. This School Board will be elected by rate-payers, and the voting will be by ballot, on the cumulative system. It will have plenty to do in caring for the educational interests of 3,350,000 people, gathered within an area of 120 square miles.

IT is mentioned as remarkable that M. Ollivier is the first Frenchman who has ever received the rank of first minister of the crown without having been the recipient of a single "order," native or foreign. The Paris mob made amends for this omission when they seized the reins of government, by giving the Minister very imperative orders—to leave.

THE official documents in the French provinces occupied by the Germans do not bear the seal of the Prussian seal or that of the North-German Confederation, but the eagle of the German Empire. This is another proof that Alsace and Lorraine, if they should be ceded by France, will not be annexed to Prussia, but be governed by the entire German country.

THE example of Parisians who expelled all Germans from their town is being followed by other cities in France. A large number of expelled Germans have taken refuge on the islands of Jersey and Guernsey. The so-called Republic has so far shown itself more tyrannical and unreasonable than any monarchy that ever ruled in France. But there is a good deal in a name.

NAPOLEON III. has been suffering with a raging toothachee for some weeks past. His friends ascribe it to the lofty and windy temperature of Wilhelmshoehe, which they assert is only adopted for a summer palace. Others, however, say that it is only an excuse to keep secluded, as he is tortured by incessant fears of being assassinated by some irate Frenchman.

THE transfer of the Italian capital will not be accomplished at present. The engineer, Castellazzo, who has been sent to Rome by the municipality of Florence expressly to provide the necessary edifices for the government offices, has reported that two years will not be sufficient for the work to be done. Even the palace of the Quirinal will not be fit for the royal residence.

THE birthday of Queen Augusta, of Prussia, was celebrated on the 30th of September at Strasburg, in the Church of St. Thomas. The people were perfectly quiet and orderly. They accept the situation, and a good many of the inhabitants who were violently opposed to annexation at first, begin to express the opinion that it will be for the best for Strasburg and Alsatia to be freed from French centralization.

AN immense order has been received in the north of England for a supply of warm blankets for the Prussian troops. It is being actively pushed on, and will help to make a brisk demand for short work. Since the raising of the blockade there has been a considerable quantity of worsted yarns exported to Prussian ports, and no doubt a good part of them will be used in providing various kinds of supplies for the German armies.

PASTOR BERSIER, a well-known Protestant minister in Paris, addresses an appeal to English Protestants through the English Independent. The following is an extract: "There is one thing which I can assert in honor of French Protestants. The have unanimously opposed and blamed this war. The Sunday after the declaration of war I did not hesitate from the pulpit to designate it a guerre insensee." Our evangelical journals all spoke in the same tone.

IT seems strong evidence of Queen Victoria's dislike to appear in public, that not even a statue of the Prince Consort, to say nothing of one in her own honor, can draw her from retirement. Liverpool has two splendid statues of the Queen and Prince ready for inauguration, and fondly hoped that its sovereign would attend the ceremony, but has received an intimation that this is not to be.

THE number of young men who entered the Prussian army as one year volunteers, and had to pass a most rigorous scientific examination before they were admitted to this privilege which shortens their term of service two years, is more than fifty thousand. Most of those one year volunteers have passed an examination for officers, so that a dearth of good material for officers in Germany is not very probable.

THE steeple of the grand cathedral at Frankfort burnt down a few years ago, and now being built, is to be three hundred and thirty-three feet high. Its former height was two hundred and twenty-six feet. The cost of repairing the cathedral will amount to 925,000 florins. The Dombauverein furnishes 200,000 florins, the King of Prussia donates the same sum, and the insurance on the building was about 165,000 florins.

THE French prisoners held in the Kingdom of Prussia alone, at the latest mail advices numbered 110,020 men, of which 60,190 were imprisoned in fortresses and the rest in stockades. This does not include the French prisoners held in other parts of Germany. The prisoners are not forced to do any work, but if they choose to employ their time they receive certain advantages, besides a small monetary consideration.

THE French at last seem to have discovered a truly charming and murderous missile. The Satan Fusee, if the account given of it in La France is correct, leaves nothing to be desired in the way of destruction. It is beautifully simple, and may be handled by a child. A plain unassuming hollow bombshell is filled with petroleum, the explosion of which is regulated by a time fuse. One of the fusees tried at St. Cloud covered an immense space of ground with "a sea of liquid and inextinguishable fire."

THE salmon angling season is drawing rapidly to a close. The autumn fishing on some of the Scotch rivers has been exceedingly good. An unusually large number of heavy fish in prime condition have been brought to land. On the Spey the Duke of Richmond and party caught thirty-eight salmon weighing over 770 pounds. Among them were some splendid fish, the largest of them weighed 28½ pounds; two turned scale at 28 pounds; five were over 24 pounds, while fourteen ranged from 18 to 22 pounds.

THE Maire of Strasburg and his Aldermen, a body composed almost altogether of genuine Frenchmen, and not Alsatians, have addressed a letter to the Maire of Cologne, thanking him for the aid rendered by him to the suffering inhabitants of Strasburg. The letter is dated September 30, and written on a letter-head which bears the arms of the French Empire, with the inscription: "Empire Francais." The "Republic" of eleven dictators in Paris does not seem to be as popular in the rest of France as in its mob-ruled Capital.

MR. BARROW, the British Consul at Kertch, reports a fearful outbreak of cholera there. Most of the cases have been very severe, death occurring generally within twelve or fifteen hours. Two victims in an adjoining house died within twelve hours, and a third is now at the point of death. The total mortality up to September 17th was one hundred and forty-one deaths. To the same date a total of three hundred and eighteen cases had been reported, and the recovery of twenty-three was doubtful.

BARONESS CHARLES ROTHSCHILD, the wife of the Frankfort banker of that wide-spread family of Cresuses, has set a good example of charity in erecting, at her own cost, a lazaretto in her city. The hospital is calculated to hold thirty wounded soldiers, and the baroness has appointed two physicians, two surgeons, and a numerous staff of attendants to the invalids. Nor does the lady rest satisfied with this pecuniary gift, but both she and her daughter bestow a great portion of their time and labor on the care of their helpless charges.

WHILE the war is making military prisoners by scores of thousands, it has the effect, through the revolution in France, of setting vast numbers of criminal prisoners free. Among those who were released from the gallies on the declaration of the Republic was Megy, condemned for conspiring against the life of the Emperor. His liberation was made the occasion of a Republican demonstration. At Marseilles he was enthusiastically welcomed, and was the object of marked attention and public admiration. Nothing is more fickle than popular applause.

PERE CELESTIN, a light of the Belgian ultramontanes, thus mildly, in a recent sermon, touches up the enemies of the Papacy: "As to the King of Italy he is a crowned bandit, shameless usurper, a cowardly scoundrel. Napoleon, his accomplice, has been crushed between the heel of a Uhlan for having withdrawn his troops from the Eternal City; but such a retribution is far too mild for Victor Emmanuel, who, like Herod, shall die devoured by worms." "Why not," inquires a wicked Belgian paper, "of the plague like St. Louis, or of the malady which ate into the bones of Ignatius Loyola?"

A POOR young Hungarian painter, named Michael Mungassey, perfectly unknown heretofore, sent a painting, "The Last Days of a Condemned Man," to the Art Exhibition at Dusseldorff, where it attracted great attention and received a prize. The painting was bought by an American for the sum of three thousand dollars. The great art dealer Goupil, hearing of this new light on the horizon of art, hastened at once to Dusseldorff, where he engaged the young artist to paint him two large paintings for five thousand dollars each. He also received an order for a six thousand dollar painting from an Englishman.

IT is a noticeable fact that the birthday of King George of Hanover, which in all the preceding years had been celebrated by those Hanoverians who still remained attached to the royal house, passed by without the least demonstrations on their part. The course adopted by the blind exile in this hour of trial for his country has estranged from him the sympathies of all his former friends. His restoration to the Hanoverian throne is now more impossible than ever, and the folly of the old man has cemented the union of Hanover with Prussia firmer than all the brilliant victories of Prussian armies against the national foe.

THE audacity displayed by the Prussian cavalry in France is most astonishing. A short time ago two officers of hussars and one of cuirassiers advanced beyond their outposts before Metz to about fifteen hundred yards distance of the walls. They were disputing the question whether a certain black spot was the muzzle of a cannon or merely a hole in the wall. The cuirassier, stimulated by curiosity, cantered up to about two hundred yards of the walls and about one hundred and fifty feet of the hostile outposts, then wheeled around in the face of the amazed French, to tell his comrades the black spot was in reality nothing but a hole.

THE rumor that three French gentlemen of distinction had been shot in Paris, appears to be true. One was Vicomte de Castelbajac, and another was M. Cartier, one of the "Anglemanez" of the Paris Jockey Club. The name of the third victim has not transpired. Both M. de Castsibajac and M. Cartier were adherents of the Empire. The latest rumor is to the effect that the victims were at the head of a clique in favor of surrender, and that by means of communication entrusted to a balloon, they desired to make known the purpose they had in view. General Trochu is said to have discovered the intrigue, and to have summarily dealt with the originators.

JOHN RUSKIN denounces the neutral position of that "nation of shopkeepers," England, with terrible bitterness. Gladstone and Bright's non-intervention he calls "selling coke and silence." It makes the pound sterling the end of national existence, and, with loud pretense of impartiality, only provokes imputations of treachery and cowardice. It is poor, he says, "yet not careful to keep even the treasure of probity—and rich, without being able to afford itself the luxury of courage." Poor old John Bull's "neutrality" is really one of the meanest articles he throws upon the market, and is likely to get very many more kicks than coppers for it.

A SEVERE accident come near befalling the youngest child of the Crown prince of Prussia. The Crown Princess is at present at Pomburg, and as she was passing down stairs with her children the nurse of the youngest child dropped it over the balustrade. It would doubtless have broken its poor little skull on the marble floor below had its clothes not been caught by a metal ornament of the balustrade. Thus it escaped death almost miraculously. As it has since been found out that the nurse, a French girl, had uttered threats that she would avenge her brother who had fallen at Weissenbug, she has been arrested and an investigation ordered.

As illustrative of the French national spirit, the following is of interest:—On a late military review, Admiral Caillez, passing by the Twenty-first battalion, halted in front of a private of the National Guard of the sixth company, who wore on his plain uniform the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor, studded with diamonds. He greeted him as M. Duruy, the former Minister of Public Instruction, for it was he. "Your place is at the head of the battalion," said the Admiral. "My place," replied the Minister, "is in the ranks of the defenders of my country. Soldiers will do better for commanders." We shall meet again on the ramparts," added the Admiral. "That is our duty," replied M. Duruy, "and we shall fulfil it with courage, firmness and success."

A PARISIAN correspondent of the Independence Belge mentions a curious detail relating to the publication of the papers found at the Tuileries. It has been impossible to discover the names of the numerous stipendiaries who, on different accounts and in all classes of society, profited by the secret resources of the Imperial government. An immense file of receipts has been discovered, but these reveal nothing but the figures of the sums received, with the signature, always the same, of an obscure official named Trousin Dumersan. But besides this, when any influential person wished the secret with regard to him to be still better kept, this same official breathed on the pane of the bureau and wrote with his finger the figure of the sum to be received, which vanished instantly. The amount of the sums thus given is incalculable.

IN South Australia there are two branches of industry for the development of which the climate of the colony seems especially adapted. Of these the more important is sericultures which starts under peculiarly favorable auspices, inasmuch as the elkworm disease, which has for some years been prevalent in Europe, is wholly unknown in Australia. The mulberry trees introduced by the government are in a most thriving condition. China and Japan are near at hand and can supply any number of eggs, and experiments have already established the fact that the quality of South Australian silk is excellent. The other culture is that of Zante currents and Sultana raisins. There are numerous vineyards in South Australia, but the wine produced from them cannot compete with European vintage.

FROM a Mexican letter to the San Francisco Bulletin we learn that in Chiapas the Indians have again taken a threatening position. The latter is not at all astonishing, because certain parties in Chiapas have been selling Indians whenever they can get hold of them. The example of Yucatan ought to have taught them better, because it was the sale of hundreds of Indians of that State to the plantations of Cuba which caused that dreadful war which has now lasted nearly twenty years, and laid waste the beautiful estates and villages on the mountain line. It is certainly the same Indian race in both States, much more cultivated than all the other Mexican aborigines. Their ancestors were the builders of Palenque and other interesting monuments, and the British are always willing to sell arms and ammunition to them.

AUCTION SALES.

PUBLIC SALE
IRON PROPERTY.
Pursuant to a decree of the Chancery Court at Nashville, in the cause of the First National Bank et al. vs. Worley Furnace Company et al., I will, as Trustee and Special Commissioner, on the 16th Day of November, 1870,
expose to public sale, on the premises, one of the most valuable and desirable iron properties in the State of Tennessee, known as the Worley Furnace. It is a hot-blast charcoal Furnace, situated in Dickson county, upon the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, 44 miles from Nashville and 34 miles from the Cumberland River, and 24 miles from Johnsonville on the Tennessee River; has 7,210 acres of land, divided in almost equal portions on the railroad, a large portion of which is heavily timbered with oak, chestnut, hickory and poplar, available for coaling purposes, and at convenient distances from the Furnace; about 100 acres cleared for cultivation, with 50 acres set in clover and timothy, and the remainder covered with a thick and rapid growing "second growth" of timber. The lands abound in ore of the best quality, in close proximity to the Furnace, the bank now being worked being less than 200 yards from the Furnace. Limestone is also in abundant supply less than half a mile from the Furnace. The Furnace has a capacity of 8 to 10 tons per day, is in good repair, well supplied with store-houses, manager's and operatives' houses, has a side track and station-house at the railroad, and is well equipped with machinery, mules, horses, wagons, carts, etc., etc.
This property offers unusual advantages to the iron manufacturer. The iron has had no superior in the State, either for foundry or mill purposes, shipping facilities are good and supplies cheap; the location exceedingly healthy, and the country is being rapidly settled with a good class of citizens from Pennsylvania and other States.
TERMS OF SALE—The real estate will be sold for 10 per cent. of the purchase money cash, and the balance in four equal instalments of 6, 12, 18, and 24 months, with interest, personal security required and lien retained. The personal property, mules, wagons, carts, tools, etc., all sums under $50 cash; and all amounts above that 10 per cent. cash; and the balance on six months' credit, notes with good and sufficient security required.
Arrangements will be made so that parties desiring to attend the sale can go and return on one fare. For further information apply to the undersigned, No. 50 CHERRY STREET, Nashville.
ISAAC LITTON,
Trustee and Special Commissioner.
